More About Our War
If France Runs Out
An Air War Coming?
The Emperor Entertains

Next week New York will see the "first million-dollar gate" since the glorious Dempsey-Tunney days and New York is excited.

Hotels will be crowded, night clubs busy, airplanes even now are bringing fight enthusiasts from all over America.

If Europe wants to interest this country or get any position on "the front page" after next Monday morning, it will have to do something very much worth while.

P. S.—Surely too wise to bet, but you may like to know that one representing the "wise money," which means money of those that know what is "arranged," bet that Baer will knock out Joe Louis. The odds are three to one against that, and as Louis has never as yet been hit VERY hard, some "wise money" bets on a knockout. The REALLY "wise money" will stay in its owner's pocket.

The Ethiopian Emperor who wants to visit the United States "after the present trouble is over" will be welcome. But this would be the time to come.

He would make a wonderful referee for the big fight, representing both sides of it, he the Semitic ruler of an Ethiopian African race.

If Baer should win, the Emperor's branch of the human race would win, and if Louis should win, the Emperor's people would win, which should make him impartial.

Many Italians would look upon the sending of British battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and airplanes into the Mediterranean as "an act of war."

Europe wonders what England would do if, after her demonstrations against Italy, she should suddenly find France NOT with her.

France has not forgotten how

Elaine Begs Barrymore's Love on Air

By International News Service

Kansas City, Sept. 21.—Elaine Barrie went on the air today with a fervent plea of love to her "Callhan," John Barrymore, as he sped comfortably westward on a Santa Fe train.

John's "Ariel" used radio station WHB to broadcast her message to him and a plea to the "people of Kansas City and the Middle West" to help her find him.

The gist of her message was:

"John, dear, you need me more than ever before. We love each other—that's all that matters."

Barrymore succeeded in eluding his "protege" today by taking a taxi-cab from Kansas city. He flagged the Santa Fe's California limited and boarded it.

DUCE SPURNS PEACE PACT

HOLY CROSS BEATS RAMS BY 32-0

Fitton Field, Worcester, Sept. 21.—Holy Cross opened its 1935 football campaign by defeating a light but fighting Rhode Island State eleven here this afternoon. The victors clinched the game in the first period by jamming three touchdowns across the Ram's goal line.

The Rams however, put up a much stiffer defense in the second quarter and had prevented the Purple from scoring again when the whistle blew to end the half.

The score was 32 to 0.

The Rams also provided a stubborn defense in the third period and again held the Crusaders scoreless.

The Crusaders opened the fourth period by marching 20 yards to score. Kidd kicked the extra point making it 26 to 0.

Just before the final whistle blew, Holy Cross punched one more touchdown across to make the final score 32 to 0.

LEAVES DOOR AJAR FOR NEW OFFER

War News

ROME.—Mussolini rejects plan devised by League. Grave fears felt that war is more certain than at any time since Ethiopian dispute began.

GENEVA. — Italian spokesman says Italy remains in League and that revised proposals will receive "most friendly consideration" at Rome.

LONDON. — Beginning of warfare in Ethiopia likely between September 29 and October 15, according to observers.

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Rome, Sept. 21—Premier Mussolini today flatly rejected the proposals of the League of Nations committee of five for settlement of his dispute with Ethiopia.

The decision, "taken by the council of ministers" at a momentous special session today, was based on the contention the proposals "do not offer a sufficient minimum basis" for settlement of the East African problem.

Rejection of the League's peace efforts, however, was regarded in some high quarters as being tempered by conciliatory wording of a communique issued after the cabinet session and announcing another meeting would be held Tuesday "to follow the developments of the political situation."

Some leaders close to Il Duce believe today's decision thus "closed but did not bolt" the door to an eventual settlement of the Ethiopian crisis.

Nevertheless the frank rejection of the League's committee's present proposals gravely darkened Europe's war clouds and brought even nearer probable date of Italy's projected invasion of Ethiopia.

The cabinet's action was taken in defiance of whatever threat lies in the massing of great air and naval fleets in the Mediterranean by Great Britain, and was taken without heed to a warning issued by France last night in a last-minute effort to stave off the flat rejection.

LAVAL WARNS DUCE

Premier Pierre Laval, through his ambassador in Rome, told Il Duce France would stand by Britain in upholding the League of Nations covenant to the limit in event Italy wages war against Ethiopia without awaiting the league council's decision.

The rejected proposals envisaged a form of international control of Ethiopia, but did not specifically give Italy special rights, it was understood.

The proposed settlement, reached after weeks of discussion in Geneva, was rejected as "unacceptable" because it does "not offer a sufficient minimum basis for a conclusive realization which would finally and effectively take into account the vital rights and interests of Italy."

ROME STILL HOPEFUL

Although foreign observers here commented gravely on the decision, pointing out the close proximity of specially massed British and Italian air and naval fleets in the Mediterranean created a situation fraught with peril, high Italian quarters thought some solution yet possible.

The rejected settlement proposals envisaged an international control of Ethiopia—a point favorable to Italians because they held it proved Ethiopia could not govern herself—but did not give Italy any special part in this control.

Furthermore, the proposed settlement provided Emperor Haile Selassie could approve or disapprove of the international advisers selected. This point was especially objectionable to Italy.

MUSSOLINI'S STAND

Premier Mussolini told his cabinet the proposals must be rejected because they did not afford a settlement of the Ethiopian problem.

Il Duce contends Ethiopia needs foreign supervision, but also contends Italy must expand colonially. He has chosen Ethiopia as the scene of this expansion.

The cabinet communique also blasted hopes in some quarters that a way would be left open for further discussion of the proposals.

It had been hoped Il Duce might find some phrase which could be worked upon to reach further proposals more acceptable to Italy and still acceptable to Ethiopia.

This hope went crashing, however, with the cabinet's announcement the proposals "do not offer a sufficient minimum basis" for realization of Italy's aims and needs.

Italy's Stand Disappoints Diplomats

By International News Service

London, Sept. 21—British diplomats were gravely disappointed today on learning of Italy's rejection of the League of Nations' proposed settlement of the Ethiopian affair.

British official circles made it plain their hopes were low.

Geneva, Sept. 21 (INS)—Acute disappointment was felt on all sides at Geneva today when word arrived of Premier Mussolini's rejection of the League of Nations' proposals for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

War Birds Like These May Scream Into Action Soon

Duce's war birds. There is no greater air force in the world than the one owned by Italy, is the continuous report from experts. Here are just a few of the great air battling force as photographed recently in Rome. If war does entangle the two the air battles will be thrilling.

Peace Hope Revived With Italy Staying in League

Copyright, 1935, By International News Service.

Geneva, Sept. 21—Faint hope for peaceful settlement of the Ethiopian crisis was revived today as the League of Nations Council Committee of Five reconvened to consider the tense situation precipitated by Italian rejection of its proposals for solution of the dispute.

Hard on the heels of a statement by an official Italian spokesman to International News Service that "Italy has no present intention of quitting the League of Nations," Italian delegates let it be known rejection of particular suggestions did not mean rejection of all.

It was believed the talk the French ambassador to Rome, Count Charles de Chambrun, had last night with Premier Mussolini, conveying to the latter a personal message from Premier Laval, was responsible for the last-minute softening of Rome's attitude.

De Chambrun, by order of Laval, told Mussolini that if Italy made war on Ethiopia before the League council handed down a verdict, France would stand solidly with England for full application of sanctions.

As a result, Italian quarters Madariaga, entering the delayed session of the committee, remarked:

"While there's hope there is life."

The committee, after an hour's meeting adjourned until Monday morning.

The league council was convoked for Monday afternoon.

It was indicated the Rome statement, issued following a council of ministers, was largely designed for Italian internal consumption.

Observers here consider it evident that Mussolini now does not want to force the hand of France as well as that of Britain.

Poles Pledge Neutrality After Italian Oil Deal

By Universal Service

London, Sept. 21—Twenty-five Italian seaplane bombers, in warlike counter-thrust to Britain's airforce and naval concentrations in the Mediterranean, sped to within striking distance of the Suez canal.

Meantime reports reached London that Premier Mussolini has won a neutrality pledge from one nation on the League of Nations council—Poland.

Likewise increased gold movements to the United States, totaling almost $40,000,000 in the past 24 hours, signified fear of European investors that war is inevitable.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Warsaw stated that, in the event of Italo-Ethiopian hostilities, Poland would remain strictly neutral.

Italian army agents, it added, had completed deals with Polish refineries for immediate delivery of gasoline and heavy oil.

Poland, as a member of the league council, could prevent the unanimous vote necessary to declare Italy the aggressor in Ethiopia and order sanctions (economic and military measures) against Italy.

Europe Believes Italy Will Start War by Oct. 15

By Associated Press

London, Sept. 21—The consensus of Europe's diplomats is that, barring the surrender of Mussolini to League of Nations pressure, the Italo-Ethiopian war will break out between September 29 and October 15.

The gravest of the ensuing questions, these troubled diplomats in Rome, Paris, Geneva and London said today, was whether hostilities could be localized or whether the African spark would ignite another world conflagration.

The survival or collapse of the cumbersome post-war machinery of peace depends, in the view of British circles, on what Mussolini does in the next few critical weeks—or even hours.

Most official and diplomatic spokesmen in Europe's capitals agree that there is only the slenderest chance that Il Duce will turn back once his blackshirts have crossed the Ethiopian frontier—generally believed, would compel the league to swing into action with the whole creaky and untested machinery of sanctions to punish the unprovoked aggression against one of its members.

Japanese Destroyer Launched

Maizuru, Japan, Sept. 21 (AP)—The 1,363-ton destroyer Harusame was launched today. It has a speed of 34 knots.

Desperate "Furies." Count them. "Furies" is the name assigned to this type of fighting planes by the British Air Force. These and many more have joined the British fleet in several bases in the Mediterranean sectors. The squadron was photographed at Maidenhall, England, during a huge air demonstration. The power of the British air force as against the power of the Italian air battlers may be tested soon.

Malta Digs in For Gas Attack

By Associated Press.

Valetta, Malta, Sept. 21—Carpenters' hammers rang the Malta note today in the discordant Italo-Ethiopian peace symphony as workmen rushed completion of gas-proof chambers.

The shelters, in both private and public buildings, were ordered by the government. Government experts lectured the public on how to use them and other defense measures in the event of an air raid.

The Maltese generally regard with something like astonishment the attention which strained Italo-British relations have fastened upon their rocky citadel.

Nevertheless, they express quiet confidence that imperial defenses there are equal to the task of protecting Great Britain's "eye in the Mediterranean."

A destroyer flotilla and submarine tender in the harbor, construction of submarine barriers and flashing searchlights directing by night the Mediterranean squadron reinforcements, fortified their conviction.

Tourist agencies said there was a noticeable decline in traffic.

Business men reported commercial intercourse stifled by the uncertainties of the moment.

The government was taking every measure to keep the populace calm, forbidding public meetings and promulgating strict anti-sedition and press control laws.

A board was set up to prevent price inflation and to assure an adequate food supply.

Hitler Youths Enter France, Stab Girl

By Associated Press

Metz, France, Sept. 21—Metz police reported tonight that one girl had been stabbed when eight members of the Hitler youth organization crossed the frontier from Germany and attacked a group of French children.

Police said investigation showed the Hitler youth members approached the French children, who were tending cows, and told them they "soon will be Germans again."

When the children protested they wanted to remain French the attack took place.

The German boys quickly recrossed the frontier into Germany.

U. S. Tourists In Flight From 'War'

London, Sept. 21—American tourists today were applying for passage home in ever-increasing numbers as the shadow of war darkened all Europe.

In Cannes, with ships of the Italian Line filled to capacity, many were attempting to engage passage home on tourist cabin vessels.

With more than 100,000 Americans having received passports to travel abroad in the first eight months of 1935, State Department officials were frankly concerned.

As a result of a controlled press throughout Europe, however, there was little alarm.

The war scare headlines that sent American tourists scampering home in droves in the prewar days of 1914 were conspicuously absent under rigid press censorship.

Heavy withdrawals of gold to the United States were reported both here and on the continent.

'War Today?'

By Associated Press

London, Sept. 21—The words "War Today?" in blazing red letters on the street sales placards of the newspapers Daily Sketch confronted Londoners on route to work today.

The tabloid size newspaper bore a front-page headline "Is It War Today? Grave News Last Night" over two large pictures showing Ethiopian warriors in maneuvers.

CONNOLLY SEES ITALY SURE OF WAR VICTORY

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 21—Italy will go through with its Ethiopian program regardless of England, the League of Nations, or any other obstacle.

This is the positive declaration of Mussolini and other leaders of Italian policy, J. V. Connolly, president of International News Service and King Features, Inc., said today upon his arrival from a two weeks' visit to Italy.

Mr. Connolly, who had a half-hour audience with Mussolini, expressed amazement at the headlines of some morning papers which described Italy as "wavering."

He said:

"This is just the opposite of everything I saw or heard in Italy.

"The thing emphasized by the officials I saw was the positiveness of Italy's program.

REFUSED FRUITS OF VICTORY

"Italy will go through with its program regardless of England, the League, or any other obstacle.

"This was expressed so positively by everybody I met who has anything to do with Italian policy that I can't believe any decision by the League, except one that would make Abyssinia virtually a mandate under Italy, would satisfy the Italian government.

"The reason for this is two-fold. First, it is charged by Italy that during the war France, Great Britain, Italy and Russia—with prospects of victory—made a treaty providing for partition of German possessions.

"When the war ended and Italy presented her claim for the share to which she was entitled under that agreement, Lord Cecil declared the agreement had been nullified by the change in form of government by Russia.

"Second, it is firmly believed by the Italian people that if Mussolini had been sitting at the peace table at Versailles, or if he were then the head of the Italian government Italy would have been given a fair share of the German colonies. Then this activity in Abyssinia would not now be necessary.

SOLIDLY BEHIND DUCE

"What happened was that Great Britain and France, with enormous colonial possessions, were given mandates over the large German colonies in East and West Africa.

"The thing that impressed me most in Italy was the complete solidarity of support of the government. Rumors of opposition to Mussolini's activity in Abyssinia are unfounded so far as I could determine.

"I don't think that America has ever witnessed such complete hero worship and unquestioning support as is now given to Premier Mussolini.

"In the 13 years of his control of the Italian government he has not only changed the physical appearance of Italy, but has given the Italian people the spirit of conquerors.

"Ten years ago the opposition of England or France to such a move as is proposed in Abyssinia would unquestionably have stopped it.

"Today, Italy, grown to powerful manhood, evidences no fear of either England or sanctions by the League.

"Mussolini told me that he has available a well-trained army of 5,000,000 men. One million men are either under arms or in training.

"What few people of the world understand—and what only military experts know—is that Italy has built probably the most powerful air force in Europe. She has 6000 crack pilots in the army and 10,000 reserve pilots.

"These men are the finest soldiers in Italy. With such a force Italy fears no nation."

TODAY

she was left to bear the brunt of 1914, before England had gathered an army, and might suddenly decide not to take part in a war against a sister Latin nation. In that case, wise Britishers believe that their government "would withdraw regretfully into splendid isolation." England's choice is to fight with allies, as when she fought with Napoleon, and before that when Marlborough won for her at Blenheim.

It seems to England "hardly cricket" when she reads of twenty-five Italian seaplane bombers in war formation flying within easy striking distance of the Suez Canal and British ships gathered there. London reports "additional royal air force planes to gather at Gibraltar shortly."

If war comes, watch, and you will see the predicted air war.

Haile Selassie, the Ethiopian Emperor, gave a banquet to eighty assorted newspaper men and some of their wives at Addis Ababa, a good dinner. When the newspaper people bowed the Emperor inclined his head "very slightly" and did not shake hands. George Washington also avoided shaking hands, and he was not an emperor, although he might have been.

The reporters ate on solid gold plates, but the electric lights went out often.

William Krebs, of New York, middle-aged, earning $20 a week, won the $20,000 prize in Mrs. Oliver Harriman's "Treasury Hunt" lottery. Mr. Krebs, dazzled, says, wisely, that he will visit his mother in Germany and, unwisely, that he expects to play pinochle and poker for higher stakes. That will be good news for those that know HOW to play pinochle and poker. Most wisely, he says, "I'm going to hang on to my job."

In Chicago, Patricia Maguire, suffering from "lethargic encephalitis," has slept steadily for 1314 days. Fed in her sleep, she has gained weight.

Thirteen hundred and fourteen days seem long, but we can all look forward to a much longer sleep, however, since we are told that we shall not be summoned to the bar of final judgment until the end of the earth. Science proves that the sun will continue to heat the earth, with men on it, for several hundred millions of years more.

That is rather in favor of the wicked, for after the first fifty million years the wrong that they have done may not seem so important.

Harvard Men's Car Kills Ohio Boy

By Associated Press

Elyria, O., Sept. 21—Jack Baird, 10-year-old son of former County Prosecutor Donald A. Baird, was struck and killed by a car containing three Harvard students and a girl today.

The students, Frank Sommers, 20, driver; David Summerfield and Cyrus De Coster, all of St. Paul, Minn., and Betty Ruth Lawrence of Minneapolis, said they were returning to Harvard. Police detained them for questioning.

DUCE CALLS AIR HERO

Nobile of North Pole Fame Needed

By International News Service

London, Sept. 21—Umberto Nobile, one of Italy's great air heroes, who has been serving in Moscow as deputy chief of Soviet airship construction by permission of the Italian government, today was recalled to Rome, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow.

Nobile, leader of the ill-fated North Pole expedition of 1926, as well as an inventor and aeronautical engineer, will leave Moscow shortly, the dispatch said.

The presumption was Nobile was needed to aid Italy in building a war fleet for the air.

Gen. Nobile

Gen. Nobile, born at Avellino, early distinguished himself as an aeronaut. He is an engineer, a graduate of Naples Polytechnic, and served as a member of Italy's air ministry and was entrusted with the construction of the dirigible, Roma.

His airship, the Norge, flew with Amundsen to the pole in May, 1926, when a landing was made on American soil at Teller, Alaska.

Nobile was promoted to the rank of general, was made a marquis and a professor of Naples Technical College.

Both Lincoln Ellsworth and Amundsen later engaged in controversy with Nobile as to the real leadership of the expedition.

His next attempt at polar exploration ended in tragedy, both for the dirigible "Italia" and for Nobile. Seven members of his party were lost after the crash on the polar ice.

Three of the party, Malmgren, Mariano and Zappi, set out on foot for Cape North.

Russia and Sweden organized rescue parties, and much criticism was leveled at Nobile after he had been first rescued, later losing Malmgren. He was found responsible for the loss of the Italia and in 1929 he resigned his rank. In 1932 he went to Russia to take charge of the designing of Soviet airships.

More Barrie, Less Barrymore

ELAINE PURSUES, JOHN FLEES

'Great Lover' Is Still in Hiding as Girl Protege Trails Him to Kansas City

By Associated Press.

Kansas City, Sept. 21 — The transcontinental run-sheep-run game of John Barrymore and his former protege, Elaine Barrie, 20, reached Kansas City today with the film star again eluding the girl.

When the train on which Barrymore was supposed to be riding to Hollywood arrived here he was not aboard, but Miss Barrie, who had speeded through last night, was at the Union Station, having doubled back.

Elaine, accompanied by several companions, was wearing smoked glasses. Her party went into conferences and then left in a cab.

What became of Barrymore was not determined.

The game started in New York, when Barrymore left with the reported determination to seek a reconciliation with his wife, Dolores Costello. He left by train, but Miss Barrie determined to head him off, chartered a plane and reached Chicago several hours ahead of his train.

He was successful in eluding her there, after an exciting "hide-and-go-seek" day and last night caught the westbound Burlington American Royal. Miss Barrie took the Santa Fe Chief.

GOES TO AIRPORT

Barrymore left the Burlington train with his two men bodyguards at the municipal airport in North Kansas City and took a taxicab.

Miss Barrie, meanwhile, having learned this, took a taxicab to the airport. Arriving there she found he had gone, and returned to Kansas City to continue her search.

A taxicab company reported a man believed to be Barrymore tried to arrange for a drive west into Kansas, but was refused because of interstate regulations.

This led to speculation that the film actor had planned to board a train for Los Angeles at some station west of Kansas City.

THEIR PET NAMES

The great lover, his ardor cooled, has declined at all times through his manager and bodyguards to see "Ariel", which Miss Barrie confided was his pet name for her.

"Caliban" and "Ariel" are characters in Shakespeare's "The Tempest."

Barrymore's manager declares the screen hero "doesn't want to be made fun of anymore."

WHAT DOLORES SAYS

Meanwhile from Hollywood, Mrs. Costello Barrymore, indicated the spectacular dash of her husband would be of little avail.

"It's too absurd," she said curtly, "there isn't the slightest chance of a reconciliation."

As the train bearing Barrymore reached Quincy, Ill., shortly after midnight, Barrymore was sitting by a window, but as the crowd congregated on the platform, he drew down the curtain.

Conductor Senner said that a man who gave his name as Dean Warner, Los Angeles attorney, asked to see Barrymore. He requested the conductor to notify "Cammeyer," who Warner said was one of Barrymore's bodyguards, that he had an appointment.

Attorney Warner was admitted and remained on the train when it pulled out of Kansas City.

From New York City to Chicago, from Chicago to Kansas City, and now from Kansas City to Hollywood continues the "chase perennial" of Elaine Barrie after the "world's greatest lover," John Barrymore. Several times have their paths crossed, but each time John managed to escape meeting his former protege.

Boy's Refusal to Salute Flag Stumps Lynn School Heads

"I pledge allegiance—"
Carlton B. Nichols, 8, suddenly relaxed from his stiff and soldierly attitude of attention.
His hand dropped to his side. He would not go on.

And Lynn school authorities were thus plunged today into one of the most perplexing dilemmas in which they have ever found themselves, and are now awaiting a ruling from the city solicitor.

For Carlton simply would not pledge allegiance to the flag.

It made not the least difference that Miss Yvonne Brooks, his teacher in the third grade of the Breed school, or William H. Pashby, the principal, insisted that he do so.

He said:

"The flag is the devil's emblem. The country is the devil's kingdom. I shall not salute them."

Principal Pashby summoned Carlton's father, a machinist in the General Electric Company. He explained:

"I taught him that."

The school committee, of which Mayor J. Fred Manning is chairman, will decide at a meeting Tuesday night what course the principals should follow in future cases of the kind.

Carlton's father and mother are willing that he should leave the room during the salute and this may be the solution.

The law provides that the pledge of allegiance ceremony shall be held once a week in every schoolroom but whether it requires every child to take the pledge remains to be determined.

"I don't want to see anybody embarrassed, either the principal, the teacher or my son," said Nichols.

"I don't blame Mr. Pashby, the principal, for enforcing the rules as he understands them. I hope a solution will be found."

The boy's mother said:

"My boy saluted the flag in the first grade because he didn't know any different. But we explained to him that his religion prevents him from doing it.

"Carlton hasn't saluted the flag for two years but I guess the teachers didn't notice it."

The Nichols family adheres to a religious sect known as the "Witnesses of Jehovah."

Nichols went on to say that his son was taught to be meek, to be humble, and to obey the laws governing society except when they conflicted with God's laws.

He quoted a passage from the Bible depicting the temptations of Jesus when the devil offered him the entire world if He would kneel down and worship the prince of darkness. He concluded:

"That proves to me that the world is the devil's kingdom."

The machinist said that he had been out of work for 19 months of the kind.

As far as Americanism is concerned, Nichols said, he guessed he was as much American as anyone present, his ancestry dating back through generations of Maine Yankees to the tribe of Micmac Indians.

"But man's first allegiance is to God, and he cannot serve two masters," he said.

Asked if he would fight for the United States in the event of war, Nichols said:

"No."

WAITKUS In Air Fights STORMS

HOPS IN N. Y. FOR LITHUANIA

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 21—Bound on a non-stop flight to Lithuania, Lieut. Feliz Waitkus was faced today with bad weather conditions over the North Atlantic.

Six hours after the 28-year-old Wisconsin flier lifted his plane—the Lituanica—from Floyd Bennet Field at 6:45 a. m. (E.D.T.), weather reports from Newfoundland said flying conditions "could scarcely be worse."

Waitkus was unsighted along the North Atlantic coast. No concern has as yet been felt for his safety, however.

Luis Waitkus

The plane is not equipped with radio sending equipment. Waitkus planned to fly as much as possible in the subratosphere.

Officials at Floyd Bennett Field said if Waitkus did this, he would miss the bad weather. He was due over Newfoundland late today.

Waitkus' goal is Kaunas, the Lithuanian capital, 4500 miles from New York.

A small four-wheel truck supported the plant's tail on the takeoff.

Two fire trucks, a police emergency crew and an ambulance stood by. The ambulance and emergency crew were kept out of the flier's sight behind a hangar.

Two street flushing trucks containing 2000 gallons of water each attended the fire trucks.

Waitkus kissed his wife, Martha, goodby and climbed into the cockpit. He posed briefly for cameramen before warming his motor.

The plane left the ground and went some distance not more than 50 feet in the air. The fire and water trucks, ambulance and police crew raced down the field to be ready in event of a crash.

Slowly the Lituanica II gained altitude. Little more than a hundred feet up it became a speck in the distance, and was gone.

The route planned by Waitkus would take him over Newfoundland, Ireland, England, Denmark and the Baltic Sea, entering Lithuania by way of Memel.

The flier carried a thousand letters for delivery in Lithuania.

Heavy Plane Caused Post-Rogers Crash

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 21—The Department of Commerce today formally attributed the cause of the Wiley Post-Will Rogers crash in Alaska to nose heaviness of the plane.

This explanation was given some time ago by Eugene L. Vidal, air commerce chief, in a memorandum, and today's report represented the official findings of the department's aviation accident board.

After noting the change of pontoons, the report said:

"A study of the effect of the various changes made on the airplane indicated that it was decidedly nose heavy and must have been extremely difficult, if not impossible, to control properly without the aid of the engine which failed almost immediately after the take-off.

"A statement made by the pilot after the change to pontoons confirms this conclusion. The exact cause of the engine failure cannot be determined."

U. S. War Secret Sentry Kills Man

By International News Service

Washington, Sept. 21—Disregarding a sentry's challenge at the entrance of a government laboratory dealing in secret munitions research, J. D. Moriarty, 36-year-old Washingtonian, today was fatally shot as he attempted to crash his automobile through the half closed gates.

R. F. Burton and R. Backer, two sailors in Moriarty's car, were held for questioning by a naval board.

No motive for Moriarty's action could be ascertained. The sentry, John F. Whitemore, reported he challenged Moriarty in a loud voice.

By Associated Press

Paris, Sept. 21—The S. S. Europa was sailing today for the United States with 16 tons of gold, valued at more than $23,000,000.

The shipment, part of the gold flow from Europe to America as the result of uncertainty over international developments, is the largest in years.

EVERETT HUNTS WOMAN THIEF

Search for Everett's phantom burglar, who has robbed a number of houses while members of families were in other parts of house, has switched to search for a woman as the result of information supplied police by neighbors of two houses which were ransacked.

The home of Mrs. John Harwood, 69 Harvard street, was the latest to be robbed. Jewelry valued at several hundred dollars was taken.

Lieut. Jesse W. Killian found that in two instances, including the Harwood robbery, a woman was seen about the premises.

Springfield Falls In Love With Baby

Springfield, Sept. 21—If there was a popularity contest in this city right now there isn't a doubt in the world that the smiling, blue-eyed foundling who has been informally christened "The Sunshine Kid," would toddle away with first prize.

Discovered in the rear seat of his automobile by William J. Cruise of Holmes street the other day, the six-month-old girl was taken to the City Hospital, where she has become not only the darling of the hospital, but the pet of the town.

More than 70 couples have requested permission to adopt her.

However, the state law requires holding a foundling for some months and giving parents a chance to claim it before it becomes a state ward.

Auto Injuries Kill Nazi Lawyer, Wife

By Associated Press

Kiel, Germany, Sept. 21—Prof. Friedrich Poetzsch-Heffter, noted German constitutional lawyer, and his wife died in a hospital here today from injuries received in an auto accident near Ploen. Their three children were injured in the crash.

Prof. Poetzsch-Heffter had recently been appointed professor of jurisprudence at Leipzig University. He represented Saxony at the Weimar convention in 1919 which adopted a Republican constitution for Germany.

Fall River, Sept. 21—The Durfee Mills, one of the oldest textile factories in this city and formerly employing 750 men, are to be liquidated, it was announced today.

Girl, 8, Kept Tied by Rope For 3 Days

By Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 21—Eight-year-old Jean Larsen, found tied hand and foot, emaciated and poorly clad in the bathroom of her home, was given medical care today while police sought the reason for her unusual treatment.

The child's father, Niels Larsen, and his wife, Mrs. Vivian Larsen, mother of four children before she married Larsen a year ago, were taken in custody for questioning.

"I went to school last year," the little Jean told policemen after they had given her food, "but I couldn't go this week because I was tied up for three days.

"I don't know how long I was there at a time, but it seemed awfully long."

The stepmother said she tied up the child only for the past three days, Sergeant Brandt said, but quoted the father as saying:

"My wife tied her up to see if we could break the girl of a kidney weakness. She has been tied up for the past four weeks."

Sergeant Brandt said when he found the girl the bonds on her hands and feet were connected with a rope so short that the child could not stand erect.

Three Injured In Trolley Crash

Harvey Lowe, 57, of Somerville, operator of an Elevated Railway car, was badly injured, and five passengers severely bruised when the car bound for Scollay square, jumped a switch outside Sullivan square terminal, Charlestown, today, and hit a post.

The two passengers were Charles E. Robinson, 63, of Clark street, Somerville, and John J. Herrington, 45, of Yale street, Medford.

Robinson complained of side injuries, Harrington of an injured head.

Lowe was rushed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital, his scalp bleeding profusely from a deep cut, and eight stitches were taken.

Attendants feel that he may have sustained a concussion of the brain as well.

Fred D. Teed of Princeton street, East Boston, attendant at a nearby gasoline station, said that the front trucks of the car jumped the switch to run up Main street, while the rear trucks took the swing into Gardenside.

The split threw the car sideways so that it crashed into an Elevated upright, splitting the car wide open.

Feared Gloria Kidnap

By Universal Service

New York, Sept. 21—Supreme Court Justice Carew stated in a memorandum on file today that he feared Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt would "kidnap" her little daughter, Gloria, and take her to Europe during her custody fight in court.

The memorandum was filed in explanation of Justice Carew's appointment of George W. Wickersham and Thomas B. Gilchrist as general guardians of the child heiress.

Both guardians have asked repeatedly to be released.

The justice said:

"I feared Mrs. Vanderbilt might remove the child from New York.

MRS. VANDERBILT

GLORIA VANDERBILT

"Europe was not much of a journey for her.

"I resolved that if she ever did remove the child from the jurisdiction of the courts of New York State, I would at once cut off her revenue."

Von Starhemberg Death Plot Bared

Vienna, Sept. 21.—A plot to murder Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, Austrian vice-chancellor, and other high government officials was bared today at the cost of a police inspector's arm.

The inspector's arm was torn off when he opened a suspicious looking package in the post office at Linz, and a bomb burst. Ten similar parcels addressed to Prince Starhemberg and others were confiscated.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick Dies in Brockton

Brockton, Sept. 21—Mrs. Mary Fitzpatrick, 71, widow of John Fitzpatrick, shoe company official, and sister of former mayor John F. Kent, died today after a long illness in her home here.

She is survived by three sons, Rev. John J. Fitzpatrick, senior curate of St. John's Church, Peabody; Henry, an artist, William F., a shoe company official, and a daughter, Mrs. Alice McLean of Newton.

Seaman Drowns Off Mystic Wharf

Plunging 20 feet from a ladder aboard the collier Hampden, Joseph Casanovo, 36, the ship's fireman, was drowned today a few yards off Mystic Wharf, Charlestown. Casanovo formerly lived in Fleet street, North End.

Joseph Josephson, the watchman saw Casanovo fall. He threw two life preservers but Casanovo was unable to grasp them. Raymond W. Curtin and William Steen, crew members then hastened to the rescue in response to Josephson's cries.

The three pulled the stricken man ashore and took him to the Haymarket Relief Station where he was pronounced dead upon arrival.

3 at Gun-Point Rob South End Gas Man

Bandits raided a filling station at 307 Albany street, South End, today and took $35 from the manager, John Mason of Silver street, South Boston.

Mason told police a touring car carrying three men sped into the station. Two of them leaped out and forced him into the washroom. Pressing a revolver against his ribs, they demanded the night's receipts and got them.

The third man remained in the car.

BONUS BATTLE SEEN AT A. L. CONCLAVE

By Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—A vanguard of the American Legion marched on St. Louis today to head the attack in a new battle for the bonus.

Legion officials estimated there would be between 70,000 and 90,000 visitors here by tonight. They predict more than 300,000 will be on hand for the opening of the national convention Monday.

First preliminary meetings were held yesterday. The resolutions assignment committee spent the day examining 736 resolutions presented by the 58 Legion departments. These showed that the bonus bill will again be a major concern of the convention.

Resolutions for bonus payment have been received from 45 of the 48 domestic departments, each representing a state. Last year the Legion demanded immediate payment after 38 states had presented similar resolutions.

The bonus resolutions are virtually all the same, asking immediate payment at full face value, with cancellation of accrued interest and a refund of interest paid. It is considered significant that none of the resolutions want the bonus payment involved with inflation or "unrelated matter."

About half of the resolutions considered deal with rehabilitation of war veterans, their dependents, widows and orphans.

The committee which examined the resolutions assigns them to other committees, which then study the recommendations and report to the legion in convention.

Bay State Group Booms Doherty

As Massachusetts Legionnaires neared St. Louis today, plans were perfected for the setting up of a "Doherty for National Commander" headquarters there.

It is the avowed intention of the Bay State delegation to push through their candidate, Daniel J. Doherty, for the highest office the Legion affords.

As soon as they arrive today to attend the 17th annual national convention, soundings will be taken concerning the temper of Legionnaires from other sections toward Doherty's candidacy.

Simultaneously with the Legion's convention will be held the convention of the women's auxiliary, both starting Monday morning.

The principal business expected to come before the session is the demand for an immediate payment of the adjusted service compensation certificates.

Exclusive!—Newsboy Shows Pals Where He Found Baby in Storm Sewer

A baby girl, only three weeks old, with a cute gurgle and a healthy cry, will live to gurgle and play because a curious newsboy looked to see what was in the "package" caught between the catch-basin cover and the curb on Whitten street, Dorchester. The "sewer babe" was left there by an unidentified young woman. The babe, shown in City Hospital with Nurse Watkins, will survive the experience. This exclusive photograph was made by Benedict FitzGerald of the Boston Evening American Staff.

CHARLIE JORDAN

Charlie Jordan, 11, of 64 Whitten street, Dorchester, was one of the newsboys who saw the strange "package" caught in the catch-basin opening on Whitten street. One of the boys, Johnny Driscoll, 17, called the police.

Charlie is pointing to the spot where they saw the baby. Arrow shows where babe was found wrapped in paper, left there by the young woman.

BABY STUFFED IN PIPE

Infant Found as Girl Flees

A baby girl, alive and about three weeks old, was stuffed into a street drain in Whitten street, Dorchester, today, by an attractive young woman, who quickly disappeared.

The child, wrapped in newspapers, became wedged in the opening between the iron grating and the curbstone.

This saved it from drowning in the drain basin below.

The young woman was wearing a pink dressing robe, indicating she did not live far away, the police said.

A checkup was begun of all doctors and hospitals in that section of the city to try to find out who attended the mother of the baby at its birth.

A woman living in Whitten street saw the girl thrust the little bundle into the opening.

She did not know what was in the bundle, but thought the girl acted suspiciously.

A newsboy, John Driscoll, 17, of Ginita street, discovered what the bundle contained.

The child, bruised from contact with iron and stone, was crying lustily when the Driscoll boy tore the paper wrapping.

The child was wedged in so tightly that the boy could not remove it. This was done later with much difficulty by police and firemen.

Patrolmen Maurice McCarthy and Thomas Kujuwa rushed the baby to City Hospital with firemen using a pulmotor in the ambulance to keep it alive.

Doctors at the hospital said the baby had a good chance to live.

Police questioned Mrs. Dina Glynn, who said she had seen the young woman. With the description she gave, they searched the neighborhood, but without result.

"It was about 10 minutes of seven," said Mrs. Glynn.

"I was looking out of my window and saw a young girl walk up to the sewer with a little bundle.

"She acted foxy-like. She put the bundle in the sewer and pushed down with her feet. I watched her.

"She crossed over to my side of the street and went toward Dorchester avenue."

Driscoll came by a moment later, made his discovery and ran to the alarm box to call police. Then Charles Gordon, 11, of Whitten street, passed, and Mrs. Glynn shouted to him to examine the bundle. He called out:

"It's a baby!"

The drain catch-basin is the second one in from Dorchester avenue in Whitten street, several blocks beyond Fields Corner.

Homicide squad inspectors were assigned to the case and men in cruising cars made a search of the district.

The young woman was said to be about 25 years old, about five feet nine inches tall, 135 pounds and dark.

303 MORE MEN FOR POSTOFFICE

Extension of Boston's postal service by the addition of 303 regular employes is made possible by establishment of the 40-hour week, Postmaster William E. Hurley announced today.

Men who have been working as substitute carriers will be appointed regulars—102 of them—and 136 additional clerks will get jobs, with 13 new laborers and two more cleaners.

The men will be taken from old civil service lists to replace the substitutes temporarily, and when the old lists have been used up, new examinations probably will be held, Postmaster Hurley said.

TEXTILE STRIKE CALLED OFF

Providence, Sept. 21—Threat of a state-wide textile strike ended today by agreement between a committee of the United Textile Workers of America and officials of Wanskuck Manufacturing Company, controlled by United States Senator Jesse H. Metcalfe.

The agreement means recognition of the collective bargaining clause of the Wagner-Connery act in the five plants of the Wanskuck Company, the union announced.

Today's agreement, which is hailed by the U. T. W. A. as the culmination of a 30-year fight for full recognition, will be acted upon at an early meeting of the Union Trades Council.

Packer's $400,000 Securities Stolen

Los Angeles, Sept. 21—The theft of $400,000 worth of non-negotiable securities from the home of Miss D. J. Bonnell, secretary to George A. Hormel, head of the packing company which bears his name, was reported to police today.

The theft, it is reported, occurred on the night of September 17, when the robber gained entrance to Miss Bonnell's home by smashing a window.

A woman's coat, valued at $500, also was stolen.

GIRLS GUARDED AS CAPTURE OF BEY NEARS

Hadley, Sept. 21—AP students at Mt. Holyoke College, more than 100 girls, were ordered not to leave the guarded campus today as state troopers hunting John Bey closed in for the kill.

President Mary Woolley of Mt. Holyoke gave the orders, cancelling the usual week-end parties and excursions that generally mark the first few days of the school year.

The hundred troopers who have been trailing Bey for the past seven days were spurred by Colonel Paul G. Kirk, state commissioner of public safety.

Disturbed over the increasing criticism of the troopers' inability to trap the Connecticuit killer, Colonel Kirk came here to lead the manhunt in person. He declared:

"Don't worry. The state police will get this man."

Greater optimism prevailed today among the members of the posse than any day previously, despite the taunt of Bey, in a note he left, which read:

"Warning to police. Eleven holes and 11 cops. Lookout, yonse guys."

The belief that the hunt is "hot" was expressed freely particularly after discovery of the hideaway Bey had been using or seven days.

In this cabin, a short distance from the Elmer Brook camp off Notch road, troopers found cod wrappings, newspapers and other evidences that the slayer had been living there.

Although Trooper Arthur Grossman of the Connecticut state police flew all night over the area where Bey is believed in hiding, he was unable to find the campfire he was seeking.

$20,000 N. Y. Gem Theft

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—Three armed bandits held up a jewelry store today at a busy midtown corner, one block north of Grand Central Station and two blocks east of Fifth avenue, and escaped with gems valued at $20,000.

Roosevelt Mother 81 Today

By Universal Service

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 21—Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, will observe her 81st birthday today.

She will have luncheon with the President and First Lady, following which her great-grandchildren, little Eleanor and Curtis Dall, will give a "show" in her honor.

The show will take place in the playhouse recently built for them on the grounds of the estate.

The usual Roosevelt birthday party will be omitted, a dinner party having been given last Sunday, when Elliot Roosevelt, the President's son, was here. It was his 27th birthday.

Despite her advanced age, Mrs. Roosevelt is in excellent health.

BOY SUSPECT CAPTURED

Stanley Gusciora, 16, who escaped from Lyman School with three other youths eight days ago after police said he gave a guard a fatal beating was captured today in a Dartmouth street restaurant.

He faces arraignment in Westboro court on a charge of murder.

Gusciora's capture was made single-handed by Deputy Superintendent James R. Claflin in the restaurant which is not far from police headquarters.

The youthful desperado who had escaped once before from the school was immediately taken to Holden State police baracks.

His capture completes the roundup. The other three boys either had been captured or had surrendered.

They are Costa Goulart, 18, arrested last Saturday; Frank V. Hecla, 18, who surrendered last Monday, and Augustine Bonzinatti, 16, who gave himself up Tuesday.

Gusciora and Goulart come from South Boston. Hecla from Dorchester and Bonzinitti from Roslindale.

Washburn was slugged early in the morning of Friday the 13th with an iron ball removed from a bathroom fixture.

Mayor Quits Fight; It's Gavin School

Mayor Mansfield definitely backed down today in his dispute with the school committee over renaming the Shurtleff school, South Boston.

"If the committee members insist they have the right to name the school and ask me to accept their suggestions, I shall ask federal authorities to call the school by whatever name they suggest," the mayor declared.

School committee members had changed the name of the school to Patrick J. Gavin, in honor of Committeeman Dr. Joseph V. Lyons' father-in-law. That name had been carved over the entrance when alumni protested to the mayor.

It was the mayor's first contention that authority to name buildings financed with PWA funds rests with PWA administrators, and that his recommendation would be sought in preference to that of the committee.

MALDEN CAN'T FIND SHORTAGE

Although there is an admitted discrepancy of $1200 between the city treasurer's and the city auditor's accounts in Malden for 1934, efforts by officials, who have spent many weeks trying to find the difference in the books, have been unavailing.

Malden has paid the state's bill of $8000 for auditing the books for 1934-35 but state auditors have not pointed out where the difference exists, merely that there is such a difference.

Mayor John D. Devir of Malden, upon vote of the City Council, sent a letter to Theodore N. Waddell, Commissioner of Accounts for the State, asking the information.

The State replied it has pointed out the discrepancy but if the city desired more work on its books the State stood ready to make further checks.

Lynn Girl Bares 'Abduction Plot'

Irene Tirrell, 16, of Collins street, Lynn, declared today a woman probation official from New Hampshire tried recently to drag her by force into an automobile as she was on her way home from school.

"You have no right to be in Massachusetts," the woman told her, according to the girl.

Miss Tirrell was arrested early this week on a charge of stealing towels and linen from goods left in storage with her father by Mrs. Thelma Shaw of Lynn.

From Wednesday until today she was held in a police station cell because bail of $1500 was demanded, due to an old New Hampshire complaint involving $1 worth of gum.

Attorney Joseph W. Jennings went before Judge Reeve in Lynn today and got bail reduced to $500 which the girl's father furnished.

Jennings is investigating the girl's story about the probation official and will fight extradition.

Uniform Again Traps Willoughby

Richard Gerald Willoughby, who thrilled Boston's 400 in 1917 with his well-tailored British officer's uniform, is again in jail in London because of a uniform.

Willoughby was convicted here on charges of forgery and impersonating a British officer. Before his arrest he was a social lion in Beacon street.

He received a three-months sentence, according to word received here, for impersonating a British major.

WORCESTER Wins Rate Fight

Worcester taxicab operators won their fight for reduced compulsory insurance rates for taxis as Commissioner Francis DeCelles reported that the temporary schedule had been cut from $500 to $400.

This is the only great reduction made by Commissioner DeCelles Because Wilmington reported many illegally registered automobiles their rate was cut $4 for light cars and $5.10 for heavy cars. Tewksbury also received a favorable change in rates.

SECOND FALL TOUR SET FOR ROOSEVELT

By International News Service

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 21 (INS)—A late fall swing by President Roosevelt into the Central States, border states and South was forecast today as a follow-up to the trans-continental trip that begins next week.

The second tour seemed definitely pegged after a Hyde Park visit by Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana.

McNutt expressed confidence the President would participate in dedication of the George Rogers Clark Memorial at Vincennes, Ind., November 17 or 18, and make a side tri pto the shrine of Nancy Hanks Lincoln.

OTHER ENGAGEMENTS

This Indiana visit, according to McNutt, will be made just before President Roosevelt's journey to Warm Springs, Ga., for his customary observance of Thanksgiving.

It is understood, also, tentative arrangements have been made to stop in Kentucky in connection with a Daniel Boone celebration.

It has been confirmed here that the President will participate in a home coming rally at Atlanta, Ga., just before Thanksgiving.

Mr. Roosevelt might go to Texas on his second trip. He has a tentative engagement with Vice-President Garner at Uvalde.

FIRST TRIP TO COAST

As for the first trip, the President is expected to leave Washington next Thursday night.

He will go by way of St. Louis, Omaha, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City, Boulder Dam and Los Angeles to San Diego.

He will then leave on a 20-day fishing cruise aboard the U. S. S. Houston which will carry him off the west coast of South America, and return through the Panama Canal to the east coast.

Meantime the President, it is said, hopes to attend a ball game at Pawling, N. Y., next week, between White House correspondents and a team headed by Lowell Thomas, radio commentator, who manages the Saints and Sinners Club of Pawling.

Jack Dempsey and "Two Gun" Stringfellow of the White House Secret Service staff are to be umpires.

FARLEY BLASTS G. O. P. FUND

By Associated Press

Endicott, N. Y., Sept. 21—Postmaster General James A. Farley demanded today that Congress and the State Legislature take steps "to prevent the secret collection of a vast Republican fund to influence the elections."

"It is announced from Washington that the Republican National Committee has organized a private corporation to gather this huge fund and hope that by this device the names of contributors may be concealed," he told New York Democrats at an outdoor gathering concluding a huge two-day rally.

Saying that, "nationally, we have done a job that is without precedent in the world's history," Farley predicted that the electorate will show "that they have more confidence in the builders than in the wreckers."

SOCIETY GIRL TO WED

Miss Blanchard Betrothed

The engagement of Miss Hope Blanchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Blanchard, of Commonwealth avenue, to Samuel S. Drury, Jr., son of the Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Drury, headmaster of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., was made known today.

Miss Blanchard is the young deb for whom Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curtis gave a ball in Rits-Carlton Hotel last winter.

Sharing debutante honors with her at this major society event was Miss Louise Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Junius Morgan and granddaughter of J. Pierpont Morgan.

The bride-to-be, who is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, is a leader of the younger social set here.

She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Whitney of Boston and of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Blanchard of Newport.

Drury is also well known in society. He attended his father's school, where for generations sons of America's first families have received their early education.

He completed his education at Harvard, where he held membership in several clubs.

His maternal grandfather was the late Roger Wolcott, Governor of Massachusetts. His paternal grandparents were Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith Drury of Concord, N. H.

He was arrested yesterday following the death of Luther Eno, 43, of Mt. Prospect street, Bridgewater, a fellow ERA worker. According to police, Buron is alleged to have struck Eno during an argument over who was "boss."

Dr. A. F. Budreski, medical examiner, today reported death was due to a ruptured blood vessel in the brain.

CLEAN CATCH-BASINS PROMISED FIXER

"THE TROUBLE FIXER"

Public Service Department, Boston Evening American.

This department has been installed as a public service for Boston Evening American readers. It will endeavor to solve problems and fix troubles dealing with city, state or public utility service. Requests must be specific and brief. No anonymous requests, nor matters of a purely private nature can be considered.

N. B. of Maripos street, Mattapan, sends in the following complaint:

"Would you kindly help me by having the rubbish collectors take an old hot water boiler away. It is left on the street every time it is put out."

"The Trouble Fixer" would advise N. B. to put out the boiler again next collection day. The supervisor's office of the sanitary division promises to have the boiler taken away by the collection service.

From Rockland street, Roxbury, J. J. R. writes:

"I am writing in regards to the sewers on Rockland street, Roxbury, near Dell street.

"There are several catch-basins there, neither of which have been cleaned out for a long time.

"The last time we had a big storm every house on this street had five feet of water in the cellars.

"I have an electric refrigerator motor in my cellar and since the last cellar-flood, it will not run.

"These catch-basins should be cleaned before the next storm, at least."

"The Trouble Fixer" learns from the sewer division's office these catch-basins will be cleaned shortly, day.

Congress Away, Now for Laws!

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

With Washington empty, it would be a chance for us to sneak down there and pass some laws.

There ain't any use denying that all of us have an idea we could run the government better than it is.

All the nuts ain't on axles. And all the spots ain't swept up by hotel porters.

But we ain't heard so much of those dizzy political pilots in the last couple of months.

Somehow, when we think of Doc Townsend, the Technocrats and the college professors, it reminds us of a butterfly in front of a herd of cattle.

The butterfly thinks he is the leader because he is in front.

4 Children Die In N. Y. Blaze

Sanborn, N. Y., Sept. 21—Bodies of four more children were recovered from the flame-swept ruins of a barn on the Tuscarora Indian reservation today, boosting the toll of the fire to four dead.

The four were trapped in the barn as flames shot out of a hayloft last night. Sanborn volunteer firemen risked their lives to recover two of the bodies, but the others were not found until ashes of the structure had cooled to-

CONANT CALLS REDS, FASCISTS 'WOLVES'

Communist and Fascist propagandists hang about the fringes of a college like wolves ready to leap upon and devour the weaklings and the complacent.

They use the unthinking student as the bell-wether to lead other sheep to their slaughter-house of censorship and suppression.

President James Bryant Conant of Harvard University made these declarations to 1037 incoming students at Harvard Union in his address inaugurating the university's 300th year.

He said:

"Even during your college career you will find groups of propagandists outside the university ready to use you for their own purposes; you will find them to right and left.

"The value of joining any group of enthusiasts who presume to dictate what one should do is extremely dubious. Have the courage of your convictions but be sure they are your own convictions.

"The suppression of academic freedom, rigid censorship, the abolition of individual liberty of opinion in both Russia and Germany are consistent with the aims of the present rulers of these countries."

President Conant took heed of this government's administration when he said:

"As an editorial in the London Times recently said, 'the fatal beginning is made when people first pay heed to an orator who preaches that freedom is in servitude, that personality grows by being submerged, that henceforth he himself will do their thinking for them.'"

Although 35 states and four foreign countries are represented in the entering class, 678 are from Massachusetts out of the 881 who registered as freshmen, an unusually large percentage.

ROGERS SHOUTS INNOCENCE

By Universal Service

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 21—Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., Standard Oil heir, shouted a denial that he had slain his sweetheart, Evelyn Hazard, pretty night club and a drinking brawl in his Indian run farmhouse near here nine days ago.

He said she shot herself.

Rogers spent two hours and 10 minutes on the witness stand under questioning of District Attorney William E. Parke at a night session of the inquest into the stage star's death.

She was found shot through the head in Rogers' bedroom in circumstances which led to placing Rogers and a house-guest, William J. Kelly, under $2500 bond on "suspicion of murder."

Rogers admitted that he had been "very intimate" with Miss Hoey, that he was not eager to break off the relationship although Miss Hoey was jealous of an unnamed "mystery woman" and had tried to leap to death from a New York hotel.

Parke then shot this question at the thin, weeping youth on the stand:

"Did you shoot Miss Hoey?"

The jammed court hushed. Rogers was startled, almost dazed. An expression of amazement crossed his face, then he exclaimed:

"No! I'd have done anything in the world to keep her from shooting herself!"

LANDLORD FINDS Her Lost $360

'Let Me Call You Sweetheart' Wins $5 Bill

Miss Gladys Roussel of Chapney place, Roxbury, promises "pneumatic fireworks" for the ten billion dollar Congressmen in return for their refrain of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

She wins the $5 prize with her following version of the Congressional theme song:

"Let Me Call You Sweetheart," Congress gally sings
To them a billion dollars
Is just one of those "little things."
"It isn't their dough they're spending
So why should they care?
But just wait 'til election—
Then we'll give them the 'sir' ".

'Prisoner of OGPU'

The Boston Evening American today presents the only first-hand authentic account of the Soviet penal camps of the Far North that has yet appeared in print.

George Kitchin, the author, died recently in London of complications resulting from four horrible years of privations in the camps.

Kitchin whose mother was English and now lives in California, was born in Finland. He was a man of education and culture and a successful business executive with a reputation above reproach. His connections together with his Russian experience had especially fitted him for his work in Russia as the representative of an American company.

As a citizen of Finland, he was released from the penal camps through the intercession of his native country. Noteworthy is his description of the operation of the Soviet system by its absence of rancor.

CHAPTER SIX

By GEORGE KITCHIN

His "caddy" traveled in the same carriage with us. He was a petty thief from Butirsky prison and was charged by the architect with certain duties such as to carry his baggage, watch it, look after his patron's comfort and bring him his boiling water.

In exchange for these services he received some tobacco, the leftovers of the bread and a little money. Sure enough, in ten minutes or so a dirty paw reached up and handed us a teapot.

The board of the OGPU had recently sentenced the architect G. to a ten-year term in the penal labor camps, but in spite of his misfortune he remained true to his usual manner.

The even flow of his words and the regular beat of the rolling carriage affected me soothingly. I dozed off and awoke only about 5 o'clock. We had not had a meal for two days and I was rather hungry.

We drank some tea and soon finished all our supplies.

In the evening our train passed Yaroslavl. Time was going by easily. The dim candlelight of the lantern lighted the gangway of our carriage.

Under the lantern sat a soldier with his rifle. He was tired, his eyes were half-shut and he was nodding.

Always Hungry

The train rolled slowly and made little noise. Now when then it stopped and lights could be seen through the frosted windowpanes.

The second, third and fourth day passed without incident. Every morning we were given our bread and boiling water, and every evening we got some more boiling water.

We were not allowed to buy papers and we had no books with us. Tediously we whiled the hours away. A faint feeling of hunger would not leave me.

We arrived at Viatka in the evening. Kotlas was 300 kilometers further north, so that we could expect to reach our destination in another two days.

Our little jail-on-wheels was slowly creeping on. It was getting colder as we proceeded northward, but the carriage remained unheated and we resigned ourselves to this discomfort.

We were all tired. The farther we went, the less laughter was heard. It was replaced by arguments and petty quarrels.

On the eve of our arrival there was a feeling of tension, mingled with curiosity and fear. One thing was certain—it was much colder.

The windows were covered with thick frost, coughing increased and the tubercular Granovsky had to clear his throat and spit at more frequent intervals, thus adding to the nervousness of his companions.

Finally, I finally opened my eyes, Funk, the shoe-paste manufacturer, was already standing at the window in complete readiness, smoking his pipe.

His expressionless little green eyes tried to look out, but could not penetrate the frosted, dirty window-pane and wandered over its surface with a tired and indifferent air.

'You'll Have to Walk'

It was getting noisier all the time. Laughter and foul ejaculations came from the gang of common criminals.

The clatter of wheels mingled with the conversation and produced a general din. Then the door opened and let in a current of cold air.

The din quieted, but was immediately resumed in a more joyful tone. Boiling water had been brought in.

The prisoners made a rush for the door where the convoy-soldier had shoved the spout of a large tea-kettle through the grating and was dispensing boiling water, a tin cupful per man.

Our precious Timofeyich, with his usual foresight, had worked his way to the grating long before and had been chattering with the soldier on subjects nearest to the prisoner's heart. He was now rewarded and brought us a whole tea-kettle of boiling water.

We were told that the penal labor camp was five kilometers from the Kotlas station and that we would have to walk there.

Judging by the temperature within our car, it was very cold outside. It would be no joke to do out there in such weather.

The convoy-chief came in and put an end to our waiting. He slammed the door behind him and cried in a resonant voice:

"Pack your things, be ready in 15 minutes. Get out of the car, form in pairs, carry your bundles.

"Attention to commands, no resistance, otherwise soldiers are instructed to shoot. Understand?"

He disappeared as suddenly as he had come. At the other end of the carriage the junior convoy-soldier was explaining to someone that "you are lucky, citizens, the car will be brought right up to the penal camp.

"It would have been hard to walk through the deep snow. We would have had to do a bit of prompting with these," and he slapped the butt of his rifle.

The gangway was filled with prisoners who wanted to be first to alight. The venerable priest resignedly stood in the corridor, murmuring prayers, heaving sighs and crossing himself.

Plenty of Time

Next to him stood his devoted seminarist lad who had insisted on piling all the priest's bundles on his own immature shoulders.

Behind the priest stood a bunch of petty criminals dressed in squalid rags. Right under my shelf stood Funk, in his well-tailored fur coat with raised zeal collar.

Little Granovsky, the financial inspector from our Lefortovsky prison, cut a funny figure. He was terribly overloaded and was grumbling in order to quiet his nerves.

Pevny and Timofeyich urged me to come down from my shelf, but the architect held me back:

"There is plenty of time. We do not have to be afraid of missing the show."

Finally the train slowed down and stopped. The door was instantly opened and a command resounded:

"Get out!"

All the 60-odd passengers scrambled and hurried to the exit, prompted by the cries and commands from the outside. Both inside the car and out, there was a loud hubbub of cries, urgings, protests and cursing.

Old Timofeyich was ahead of me in the passage-way. At the door he involuntarily stopped. Right under him, in the snow, sprawled Pevny, who had just jumped out of the car.

The soft snow and the heavy box on his shoulders interfered with his endeavor to regain his footing and his mishap accentuated his usual awkwardness.

"Jump, you old fogey," shouted the convoy-soldier.

"But, excuse me, can't you see that there is a man down there. How can I jump right on top of him. Generally, how do you expect people to jump from this height. You can break your neck this way . . ."

His tirade was cut short by a curse and a strong blow in the neck, which threw him right out of the car and sent him sprawling on top of Pevny.

This was the first ocular demonstration I had of the manhandling methods in the penal camps.

More Join Crowd

I tried to help them, but a soldier jumped at me and urged me on. The architect landed immediately beside me and dragged me on with him.

Bravely we made our way through the snow, which reached up to our knees. We joined the crowd of bewildered people, overloaded with their bundles, tossing about like men possessed, bawling and cursing, all making their day through the deep snow, lashed on by the shouts and oaths of the soldiers.

Here and there men fell under their heavy loads on the uneven path. Butts of rifles urged them up and in despair they left half their belongings in the snow and trudged on without them.

"Go ahead, go ahead, don't stop or we'll shoot," constantly filled the air.

These shouts were effective and the swarm of people steadily rolled onward.

"Two in a row, two in a row," we were ordered.

This command was difficult to fulfill as so many of the men stopped and fell from exhaustion. Close to me, I saw Granovsky's face, convulsed with rage.

His head was pushed forward by a soldier, who poked his gun in his side.

"Move on, you son of a pig," he bawled at him.

The sardonic voice of the architect brought me back to reality.

"And here is our new 'home,'" he said, pointing his chin at the buildings some 23 yards ahead of us.

There seemed to be enough housing provision for all of us. The buildings were surrounded by a barbed-wire fence. A sentry box stood at the high gates, and over them was an inscription which I could not read at that distance.

Behind the barbed-wire enclosure a group of men in military great-coats seemed to await our arrival.

We sat down in the snow, lit our cigarettes and gradually regained our equilibrium.

My low brown shoes and Scotch golf stockings were covered with a crust of ice. The lucky owners of broad coat-collars had raised them and others had pulled their caps over their ears.

BUSINESS GAINS RAPIDLY, SAYS WADSWORTH

Editor's Note: The United States Chamber of Commerce directors' meeting which closed today brought together more than fifty business men from all parts of the country. While the chamber as a body has been increasingly critical of the administration, some of its members feel that things are generally on the upgrade. International News Service has polled a few of the leaders with a view to getting their views as to general conditions.

By International News Service

Washington, Sept. 21—Although most of the officers and directors attending the United States Chamber of Commerce directors' meeting here were critical of President Roosevelt's policies and legislation, many felt conditions in the nation are speedily improving.

Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, a former undersecretary of the treasury, was one of these. He believes the so-called "breathing spell" recently announced by President Roosevelt will have, and now is having, a distinctly healthy effect on the country.

"I would say that, in general, business is improving fast," he said. "The most encouraging sign is the fact that the kilowatt hour output of electricity was higher in August than ever before in that month.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

"Power companies are adding to their power status. A year or so ago, they were complaining that there was too much power available. These are good signs.

"As for the so-called 'breathing spell,' the fact is that if the regulatory and experimental legislation period is over, business will know what to expect, and can adjust itself to changed conditions.

"On the whole, I find a very much better and healthier sentiment than was observable when I left to go abroad earlier in the year."

From another vice-president of the chamber, Philip J. Fay of San Francisco, however, came comment not so encouraging. He said:

"If we only really knew what was the plan of the President, I believe that things would move forward better and faster. There is a wealth of accumulated demand waiting to be released when there is certainty.

"Until there is certainty, this demand will not be unleashed.

"Moreover, there are many administration measures which are calculated to paralyze industry if they are carried through.

BUSINESS IS READY

"Take labor, now. Of course, we have a problem that is peculiarly our own, on the West Coast, in the longshoremen's strikes. We pay the highest wages for that work in the world out there. Yet all the agreements that they have been able to negotiate have not served the purpose for which they were established.

"Business is ready, willing, and anxious, to really improve conditions. But we want certainty—and we haven't got it yet, with all of the promises of breathing spells.

"What is this 'breathing spell' we hear about? Is it a threat? We'd like to be enlightened. We want a little certainty. The nation must have certainty before it can move ahead."

Vice-President David F. Edwards, president of the Sace-Lowell shops in Boston, was cautiously optimistic, but refused to discuss politics in an form. From an economic standpoint, he stated:

"There is today more general activity in business than there has been heretofore. There is a better feeling among business men. The outlook is encouraging. I believe we are on the upgrade."

Quezon Aid Slain

Manila, P. I., Sept. 21 (AP)—Members of the constabulary patrolled the town of Batac today following the assassination of Julia Nalundasan, supporter of President-elect Manuel Quezon, by an unidentified assailant earlier in the day. Nalundasan, elected to the new Commonwealth Assembly, was a member of the Insular Legislature.

Holdup Victim, Rescuer

Mrs. Rose W. Baler of Ashton street, Dorchester, shown crying after her frightful experience, was slugged, bound, and gagged by two holdup men today in the office of B. A. Carroll Co., State street. The men escaped with $46.60, overlooking $353 in the safe.

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Miss Anne Simon, 23, of Linwood street, Malden, heard the cries for help by Mrs. Baler, who had been bound by bandits, and ran to her aid. The holdup men missed $3000 which had been paid out yesterday.

WOMAN BOUND IN STATE ST. HOLDUP

A young woman office-worker at 110 State street was slugged, bound and gagged today by two holdup men, who fled with three pay envelopes containing $46.60.

Police believe the robbers were after $3000 which had been paid out yesterday. They overlooked $353 in the safe.

Their victim was Mrs. Rose Waterman Baler, 28, of 12 Ashton street, Dorchester.

The robbery occurred shortly before 11 o'clock, in the offices of B. A. Carroll Co., Inc., stevedores, on the seventh floor.

Mrs. Baler was alone in the offices.

The bandits left her in a closet, bound and gagged and her mouth bleeding.

They left quietly, closing the outer door. They walked down to the sixth floor and took an elevator.

KEPT FACES HIDDEN

In the elevator they kept wiping their faces with handkerchiefs and thus hid their features from the operator, William Murdock of West Foster street, Melrose.

Mrs. Baler escaped from the closet after a short struggle and cried for help. Miss Anne Simon, 23, of Linwood street, Malden, responded.

Mrs. Baler said:

"When the two men entered, one of them asked for Steve Murphy, a foreman. I told them he was not here.

ASK FOR PAY ENVELOPE

"One man asked me for his pay envelope, giving a fictitious name.

"I went into the inner office to look at remaining pay envelopes.

"They followed and the man in brown pulled out a nickel-plated revolver and demanded the money.

"There wasn't much in those envelopes, so I said, 'Take it.'

"He kept repeating, 'Keep quiet or I'll shoot.'

"Then the other fellow swung his fist at me, hitting me in the mouth. Both of them pushed me down into a chair, stuffed a handkerchief in my mouth and tied my hands with a strip of upholstery.

"Then they put me in the closet.

Middleboro Death Crash Driver Held

Brockton, Sept. 21—George L. Millett, 22, of Mt. Pleasant street, Middleboro, alleged driver of the automobile that killed a motorcyclist in Middleboro yesterday, pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter in district court today.

The case was continued to Wednesday by Judge William G. Rowe. Millett furnished bail of $1000.

Physicians at Brockton Hospital hold no hope for recovery of Miss Stinson, 23, of Flagg street, Bridgewater, who was riding with Millett. She suffered a fractured skull.

Arnold Turner, 23, of Titicut street, Bridgewater, was the cyclist victim.

Burns Mentioned For Kennedy Post

Washington, Sept. 21 (INS)—Speculation was rife today as to whom President Roosevelt would appoint as successor to Joseph P. Kennedy on the securities and exchange commission.

Those mentioned included Benjamin Cohen, close adviser to the administration, and John J. Burns, general counsel for the SEC, a Kennedy appointee, and former Massachusetts superior court judge.

Aguinaldo Protests Election 'Frauds'

By Associated Press

Manila, Sept. 22 (Sunday)—Leaders of General Emilio Aguinaldo's National Socialist Party, which was defeated in last Tuesday's election, announced today they had cabled to President Roosevelt a protest against conduct of the balloting.

They charged frauds had occurred, and accused Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy of partiality.

'My First Days in the White House'

"PRESIDENT HUEY" IN HEALTH FIGHT

By HUEY LONG

READ THIS FIRST:

In preceding instalments Huey Long, elected President in 1936, sets about reforming the country along the lines of his "Share the Wealth" program.

He deals with the problems of bank reform, public ownership of railroads, the nation's farms, education, etc., and orders his attorney-general, Frank Murphy, to take steps to eliminate crime and restore justice throughout the nation.

As this instalment begins, he is musing at his desk on the problem of national wealth.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

After saving and remaking the lives of thousands, the celebrated Mayo brothers had turned their accumulated earnings to the cause of humanity saying they preferred their children to make their way in the world rather than to become indolent.

I called my secretary.

"Please get one of the Mayo brothers on the telephone. I presume they are at their sanitarium in Rochester, Minnesota."

In a few moments my phone rang and a voice said: "This is William Mayo. I am at your service, Mr. President."

"I would like you and your brother to come here to Washington to see me whenever you can conveniently make the trip," I informed him.

"What day, Mr. President?" he asked.

"Any time that suits your convenience. I am here all the time."

A few days later I was thrilled when my secretary escorted the Mayo brothers into my office.

"I can't thank you half enough for coming here," I told them.

We shook hands and they drew up chairs beside my desk.

"Gentlemen, I wish to give you a few new patients," I said. "That is very nice of you, Mr. President," said the elder brother, William J. Mayo. "Some of your friends or members of your family?"

"Well, some of them are my friends," I replied. "Your new patients are to be 130,000,000 people, living in the United States and called Americans. I would like to have you prescribe for them the preventive measures and curative, medicinal treatments which they need.

"I would like you to help me in stamping out a number of diseases that take a terrific toll of human life and human effort from the American people every year. I intend to have the federal government provide the facilities and equipment which you will need to carry out this work."

Mayo Brothers Startled By Stupendous Proposals

"Why, Mr. President, you startle us," the elder Mayo replied. "Just how far would you ask us to go?"

"I want you to go just as far as medical science will permit you to go," I replied. "I want you to form a committee of your own profession to help you. You gentlemen understand the business of organizing, and I shall leave those details to you."

"But, Mr. President, I would like you to outline a little more clearly just what you have in mind," the elder Mayo said.

"Well, first," I said, "I would like to enlarge, under your supervision, the present, insignificant federal laboratory here in Washington into the finest laboratory on the face of the globe. I should like its scientific experimental work extended to include every known disease for which there is not a known cause or a satisfactory cure or preventive."

"Why, that is an enormous task, Mr. President," the younger man, Charles H. Mayo, interposed.

"Not enormous to the Government of the United States," I replied. "We have a Government here which has not hesitated to spend billions of dollars and sacrifice hundreds of thousands of lives to kill human beings in other lands, under the sacred name of war.

"As President of the United States, I shall not hesitate a second to spend millions, or even hundreds of millions of dollars, to kill germs that prey upon the human race, and to war against disease.

"You will need chemists, physicists, pharmacologists, pathologists, gynecologists, immunologists, physiologists and physicians.

"I hope that you confer with the experts of the Rockefeller Foundation, such as Dr. Simon Flexner; with the scientists of the Carnegie Institute, the scientists of the life insurance companies, and some of our noted research specialists of city laboratories, such as Dr. William H. Parke, of New York city."

"You have given us a task of magnificent prospects, despite its magnitude," said one of the startled brothers.

"I am furnishing you and our people with an opportunity to do something about it and all these other problems of life and death," I replied.

"Well, gentlemen, I wonder whether it isn't possible to discover a real antidote to narcotics and a means of curing the dope addict. I know that these addicts go through a sort of cure; our hospitals and our prisons try to cure them, and they do rid their patients of the immediate habit so that they can live in mental comfort without requiring the exhilaration of narcotics; but inevitably the addict returns to his former habit, as soon as medical vigilance is relaxed."

"I never believe that anything is impossible to the medical profession," the elder Mayo interposed.

"I wonder whether you will undertake the mission of trying to discover new methods for the treatment and cure of the various forms of insanity?" I asked.

"Curing poverty, hunger and nakedness will cure and prevent most of the human ailments," said the elder Mayo.

"Well, gentlemen, would an initial appropriation of five million dollars be enough to start this war on disease?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, but won't we need some authority to act?"

"I shall arrange that."

The two brothers arose.

"We must return to our sanitarium and prepare for an unlimited leave of absence," said the elder Mayo. "I am quite sure our associates will be able to carry on there in our absence. In the meantime, we will consult with the gentlemen and institutions you suggested, and we will be back here in a month ready to go to work and to remain indefinitely.

"I trust, Mr. President, you will be ready then to have us begin this tremendous work."

"I certainly shall," I replied.

They took their departure and left with me the presentiment that these two, fine, upstanding men would lead the American people out of the wilderness of disease.

After the Mayos left, I sent for the Surgeon General of the United States, Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, head of the Bureau of Public Health Service. When he arrived I told him of my interview with the Mayos and my plans for a great Federal Hygienic Laboratory.

He was enthusiastic over the prospect and immediately offered to resign his own post so that one of the Mayos might take it and thereby be in control of the whole Public Health Service. I declined to permit this.

Plans to Standardize Education of Nurses

"Oh, no, General Cumming," I told him, "I have an equally important task for you to perform as Surgeon General. I only want you to give the Mayos and their appointees a completely free hand in the operation of this laboratory."

"You didn't need to tell me, Mr. President," said the Surgeon General. "I am so enthusiastic about your program that I'd even serve as an interne, just to help the Mayos."

I commended his attitude.

"Now, here's another task: I would like to standardize the education and instruction of nurses. They serve in the trenches of the war against disease. The Government should help to equip them properly for that war.

"Unless you would have someone else in mind, I might suggest that you consult with Dr. Claude W. Munger, of Valhalla, New York, Chairman of the Nursing Committee of the American Hospital Association, and with Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, Professor of Public Health at Yale. It may be we can recommend new standards for the nursing schools.

"And another thing: I want you to draft a program for educating the public, not only in what we discover at the Laboratory, but in what we already know.

"Talk to my old friend, Dr. Copeland—you know, Senator Royal S. Copeland—about this phase of the program. He has carried on, almost single-handed, a battle for years to educate the common people in the most simple of medical truths.

"I want you to confer with him and agree on a program—how we can disseminate authentic medical information quickly, accurately and effectively to the people, in language all can understand."

"I am only too happy to undertake these assignments, Mr. President," the Surgeon General said.

As he departed, I knew the federal government for the first time in all American History, would care for the health of the American people.

'JUBILEE' Smash Hit Rehearsal Indicates

By GEORGE HOLLAND

A hundred and twenty persons worked until daylight today to whip "Jubilee" into shape for the young season's most important opening (tonight) at the Shubert Theater.

Dress rehearsals do not always indicate the fate of a show at its premiere. Yet, from a lingering observance of what happened last night and this morning at the Shubert, a bystander would be forced to predict that here is the smash hit—the solid smash hit—of the new theatrical year.

George Holland

• • •

You will be absorbed in the departure from rote undertaken by Hassard Short in the staging of his pageantry. Against a neutral grey background, the noted director has elected to depend on his costume colorings to dominate the decor of his grand court scene. Here is genius.

• • •

"Jubilee" will have no competition in the legitimate theater locally until Friday evening. Mary Young in "Post Road," with several members of the cast that played last season in New York, will relight the Copley Theater that night.

Edward Fielding will play the leading male role for the play's Boston engagement, continuing in the part he created in the original company. Edmond Ryan will play his original role, and Helen Nemur, Margery Clark, Lyna Beranger, and Lillian Brayton will be others in the cast. Richard Heath of Boston, and John Spooner, who played with Wharf Players in Provincetown will be in the cast.

• • •

A week from Monday will find four Boston theaters competing for patronage. "Jubilee" and "Post Road," will continue at their respective stands, and "Porgy and Bess," the Theater Guild's American folk opera by George and Ira Gershwin and by Du Bose and Dorothy Heyward, will be current at the Colonial.

Cardini, on the night of a week from Monday, will be present on the stage of the Plymouth Theater in a new play called "The Ascending Dragon." Frederick Jackson wrote it. You will read much more about it here next week.

• • •

Tyrone Power, Jr., son of the Shakespearean actor, has been working this past summer at the Beach Playhouse, Falmouth. Katharine Cornell has signed him to play in "Romeo and Juliet," scheduled for Nov. 4 at the Shubert Theater.

Florence Reed, Ralph Richardson, Maurice Evans and Charles Waldron will support the star also. Miss Reed was star of "The Shanghai Gesture." She will play the nurse, and Mr. Evans will make his American debut as Romeo.

'Dark Angel' Rare Film Treat

By Joyce Dana

"The Dark Angel," at Loew's State and Orpheum, will surely record itself as one of the most poignantly beautiful stories of the film year.

It may be something of a wrench to get away from these sophisticated days to the unaccountably old-fashioned sentiment of war-time.

But Fredric March, Merle Oberon, Herbert Marshall and Director Sidney Franklin have done such a masterly job that you'll dry your tears with a satisfied sigh that for once in that rare blue moon, Hollywood can be temperate, sincere and tenderly romantic.

"The Dark Angel" is a simple story of brave young England, of a girl and two men who loved her. Perhaps its appeal will be strongest for those who are neither too young to have known, nor too old to have forgotten, the War. For into the calm content of the lives of these three, Kitty, Alan and Gerald, the shot that rang 'round the world from Sarajevo brought drama and despair.

At a little inn in fog-drenched Folkstone, Kitty and Alan pledge their love. Below stairs toasts are drunk and songs are sung to the glory of England, while transport ships wait to slip across the channel.

At the front, Gerald, believing Alan has forgotten his vows to Kitty in a cheap night-before-leave escapade, refuses to send him back to her. Gerald is wounded and Alan is believed killed.

When bitter memories are dimmed, Gerald and Kitty decide to marry. Then they find Alan, blind; loving Kitty too much to burden her with his infirmity.

• • •

Miss Oberon is a revelation. No longer a cross between a geisha girl and Mata Hari, the powers that be have miraculously allowed her to act and look like a real person. She's wholesome and charming, and if she ever goes slant-eyed again, she'll have only herself to blame.

Mr. March more than makes up for some stiff and stolid past performances in the grandest he's done. He'll wring your heart out, and we'd never have believed it possible. Herbert Marshall, with less to do, does it with his customary gentlemanly appeal.

Every lesser part is excellently drawn, from Janet Beecher, John Halliday and Henrietta Crosman as onlookers to young romance and heartaches, to a group of altogether adorable children. They are George Breakston, Cora Sue Collins, Fay and Denis Chaldecott and others not easy to identify. We'd like to go to their kindergarten.

• • •

The most commendable thing about "The Dark Angel" is the admirable restraint with which it is set forth. Not once is there any approach to the maudlin. Not once do the three principals overact.

There is a splendid paucity of words. The emotions are in your heart, and not in the artificialities of celluloid. It's magnificently done.

And if you're tired of barking machine guns, carping G-men, interminable and tricky dance routines, and the current boop-boop-adoop from screenland's billion dollar product, go to see "The Dark Angel" and have a good cry for yourself. You'll love it.

Opening Tonight

SHUBERT. Mary Boland in "Jubilee," with June Knight, Melville Cooper, Derek Williams, May Boley, 94 others of principals and chorus, 580 costumes and 22 scenes. What is perhaps of equal importance are the facts that Sam H. Harris and Max Gordon are the producers; Moss Hart wrote the book, and Cole Porter the lyrics and music; Hassard Short is the director, and Albertina Rasch staged the dances. Ten days (at this juncture) only. No seats unsold for tonight.

Trio of Talent for Boston Stages

JUNE KNIGHT
June Knight, of Broadway and Hollywood, is one of the charming principals in "Jubilee," Moss Hart-Cole Porter musical comedy, opening tonight at the Shubert.

CARDINI
Cardini, suave artist in necromancy, will play one of the leading roles in a new mystery-comedy, "The Ascending Dragon," which comes to the Plymouth Monday, September 30.

ANNE WIGGINS BROWN
Anne Wiggins Brown is one of the principals in "Porgy and Bess," George Gershwin's American folk opera, which the Theater Guild brings to the Colonial for one week starting Monday, Sept. 30.

BETTE DAVIS GEORGE BRENT
Bette Davis and George Brent are the brave young pair who face death and danger in the Cosmopolitan production, "Special Agent," which comes to the Metropolitan next Friday.

Stars Galore In Met's Bill

By ANN AMES

Strike up the band for the Metropolitan this week, where there are more stars than you can count. Morton Downey's on the stage, "The Big Broadcast of 1936" is on the screen.

Mr. Downey's dulcet tones are heard in just the things everybody wants to hear. A half dozen of radio's most persistent melodies are wafted through the Met better than you've heard them before or will hear them again, no matter where and when you tune in.

And to top it off, there's a rousing version of "Irish Eyes" with a bit of the Downey blarney thrown in for good measure.

And since most requests to the tenor are for "The Rosary" you'll find that ending up the act, with a dim and vested choir in the background. Crooners may come and crooners may go, but we'll take a voice that sings instead of slides into pitch.

• • •

"The Big Broadcast of 1936" has a colossal roster of stars. And surprisingly enough there's an absurd but still funny story tacked on.

Lyda Roberti is a delightfully demented countess who kidnaps Jack Oakie — "Lochinvar, the Great Lover," he is—and his pal, Henry Wadsworth. They all wind up in a delirious kingdom where the countess's admirers are usually poisoned before breakfast.

Meantime Gracie Allen and George Burns are in hot pursuit in a rowboat. Gracie has her knitting and burns up the oars. You go on from there.

It's mad and silly. But it's got life and pace and, since nobody took it seriously, you won't have to.

• • •

Bing Crosby sings a song about the moon in a particularly silly setting. Ethel Merman emulates Tarzan, playing around among the elephants while she warbles "It's the Animal in Me."

Ray Noble and his Band make the capering and capricious Ina Ray Hutton look and sound silly. This department could get along nicely without Miss Hutton's besequinned gyrations. And we're no pushover for Amos AND Andy, who cut up in a grocery store.

The Vienna Choir boys are oddly out of place. The traditions of 400 years must suffer something of a set-back, sandwiched in between Jack Oakie and Gracie Allen.

However, since Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles turned up fighting. Bill Robinson tapped and grinned, and the dusky Nicholas brothers entertained grandly. it's a wonder Maxie Baer and Elsa Maxwell didn't ring in a little Shakespeare somewhere.

• • •

The rest of the Met stage show is well up to par, with Fabien Sevitzky contributing a brisk and stirring version of the "Scheherazade," the Elida ballet as little ducklings or something, some clever sleight-of-hand by Tommy Martin, dancing by the Twelve Aristocrats and fast and funny tumbling by Tom, Dick and Harry.

Navy Film At Scollay

"Annapolis Farewell" is the new screen feature at the Scollay Square, where it shares its patriotic honors with the less heroic exploits of George Burns and Gracie Allen in "Here Comes Cookie."

Sir Guy Standing is the gallant ex-admiral hero of "Annapolis Farewell," which has some authentic, thrilling shots of the United States Naval Academy and its cadets on parade.

The traditions of the Navy are strongly built up in this sentimental story of devotion to the flag. Sir Guy lives in the memories of the days at Manila Bay where he fought for Dewey.

Young Richard Cromwell and Tom Brown, room-mates and rivals for the affections of pretty Rosalind Keith, are the young upstarts who have to learn to take life and the Navy seriously.

"Here Comes Cookie" is in sharp and very funny contrast. There's plenty of Gracie for her admirers to laugh at. It's a long and involved story, with the accent on the Burns and Allen brand of inane humors. George Barbier and Betty Furness are featured in the cast.

Korda Signs Hollywood Directors for London

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Sept. 21—The quiet-spoken, well-liked Alexander Korda returns to London with contracts made out for three of our important directors. He signed Harry D'Arrast, King Vidor and William K. Howard for London, Ltd. production set for any time between December and April.

This arrangement naturally doesn't affect any Hollywood engagements. Vidor is under contract to Paramount for two pictures and he will probably do his London picture in between his Para pictures.

Louella O. Parsons

Korda also tried to borrow Marion Davies for a historical costume drama with the spectacular range of "Henry, the Eighth" and "Catherine of Russia" but Jack Warner has other plans for Marion. The Warner schedules include a picture abroad if she cares to do any picture-making in England.

• • •

June Travis, the Hal Wallis discovery, has been rediscovered by Howard Hawks. Howard saw her in a bit in "Shipmates Forever" and asked for her in the lead opposite Pat O'Brien in "Ceiling Zero," which he will direct.

• • •

Carole Lombard was asked if she would have any objections to playing opposite William Powell, her one-time husband, in an RKO picture. Carole answered she had nary an objection. She said:

"I consider Bill one of the best actors on the screen and I would enjoy being in one of his pictures."

The story goes that Bill in reading the script, said only one girl should play the part—namely, Carole Lombard. But it will be months before it's made.

• • •

A preview before a picture is filmed is really something new under the sun. Natalie Kalmus, color director of Technicolor, and Fanchon & Marco, have joined forces to produce six shorts.

So that the ladies will know how their films will look as to color, songs, dances and dramatic scenes, the act will be prepared actually as it is to be filmed and the Paramount Theater audiences will serve as judges. That is, if the act goes well it will be filmed as it is presented. Not a bad idea.

Snapshots of Hollywood

EDDIE MANNIX given a great big send-off by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executives before he and MRS. MANNIX left for Europe; the party went on and on; JANET GAYNOR and AL SCOTT, COLLEEN MOORE'S ex, no longer care if the world knows of their feeling for each other; when we first printed the story that AL was playing tennis every day with little GAYNOR there were plenty of denials but now they lunch, dine and see each other at the Hollywood cafes for lunch and dinner.

Pretty MARY ROGERS dancing with BINNIE BARNES, her husband SAMUEL JOSEPH and HOWARD HUGHES; HELEN JEPSON of the wonderful voice, on her way to New York for a radio engagement; CLARENCE KOLB, famous for years on the stage, in town and about to go into the movies; the elopement any day of GLENDA FARRELL and ADDISON RANDALL is a current prophecy. That's all today. See you Monday!

BETTY ALDEN

on Beacon Hill

Society at Charity Pre-view of Doll's Castle

By BETTY ALDEN

SOMEONE HAS SAID that we are all merely grown up children . . . and though we occupy most of our waking hours with business, politics and thoughts of war and intrigue, it is a pleasant change to recapture, if only for a few brief moments, the innocent dreams of childhood and the imaginings of a fairyland where the good can always be counted upon to be good and the villainous never fail to be naughty . . .

BETTY SWIFT

Last evening many sophisticated adults took advantage of an opportunity to step through Alice's looking glass and find themselves in Wonderland, about to venture through the high arched gate of a fairy castle, to stroll through fabulous hallways with marble floors and gossamer spider web draperies, or to climb winding stairways and visit the haunts of Cinderella, Peter Pan, the Fairy Princess, and all the eerie characters of childhood's fairyland dreams . . .

This fairy castle is Colleen Moore's Doll House which is on exhibition at Jordan Marsh's and which was first seen in Boston at a preview and reception last evening attended by a number of invited guests . . .

Among those who saw this enchanted little castle were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mitton and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mitton who received with Miss Moore . . . The latter wore a pale green metal cloth gown with an accordion pleated skirt and Grecian bodice . . . Mrs. Richard Mitton wore a beautiful ermine cape over her black lace dress trimmed with panels of apple green velvet . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Thompson, Mrs. James C. Duane, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Miss Sarah Hyams, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Baker, Mr. Adolf Erlich and his daughter, Miss Pauline Erlich, who wore a vivid flowered silk dress under a short black velvet cape, were others there . . .

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge, Mrs. Crafton Abbott, who wore a sea green bagheera dinner gown with a mink scarf; Mrs. William Brace Pratt in a burgundy woolen dress and beret; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whiteside, Mrs. George Monks in a black lace dinner gown with a large black hat; Mr. and Mrs. W. Dwight Rudd, Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds, Mrs. Robert Cushman, and a bevy of debutantes who sold programs . . . Among the latter were Mimi Little, Ledlie Laughlin, Reinette Plimpton, Polly Olney, Edith Lewis and two post debs, Betty Swift and Margaret Eaton . . .

Jane Wheeler Bride of George P. Swift

Looking exactly like the diminutive bride on a wedding cake, small, dark haired Jane Wheeler stood in the drawing room of her parents' home in Brookline this afternoon, and pledged her marriage vows to Mr. George Paschall Swift, son of Judge and Mrs. Parton Swift of Buffalo, N. Y. She wore an ivory satin gown which has been worn by several brides in the family, a cap of lace that had belonged to her great-great-grandmother, and a long tulle veil. An old fashioned bouquet of white roses and lilies completed the costume.

Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, her sister's maid of honor and only attendant, wore a Lydrangea blue bagheera dress with a beret of a deeper shade of velvet, and carried a bouquet of magenta dahlias. The Right Rev. John LaFarge of New York performed the ceremony and Mr. Parton Swift, Jr., acted as best man for his brother. Two other brothers, Mr. Randolph Swift and Mr. Harlan Swift, were the ushers.

Miss Wheeler who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Wheeler, of Chestnut Hill, has been an active member of both the Junior League and the Vincent Club. She is a graduate of the Master's School in Dobbs Ferry and of Mlle. Clement's School in Paris, and made her debut in the 1931-32 season.

Mr. Swift prepared for college at the Canterbury School and was graduated from Princeton with the class of 1934. He is a member of the Ivy and Triangle Clubs. After their wedding trip Mr. Swift will take his bride to live in Buffalo.

Lucy S. Rantoul Millis Man's Bride

Miss Lucy Saltonstall Rantoul, first vice president of the Vincent Club, was married this afternoon to Richard King Thorndike, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard King Thorndike of Millis . . . the wedding was at the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel and only the cream of Boston's elite were in the fashionable assemblage of wedding guests who heard "Lucy" and "Dick" pledge their marriage vows before the Rev. Samuel S. Drury.

The bride, who clung to convention by wearing a traditional ivory satin gown with a tulle and lace veil and a bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias, asserted her individuality in having no honor attendants, simply four bridesmaids . . . they were Connie Turner, her best friend; Josephine Murray, her niece, and the bridegroom's two sisters, Priscilla and Cynthia Thorndike . . . They all wore madonna blue frocks with matching hats and bouquets of cream colored bouvardin . . .

G. Quincy Thorndike of Millis and New York attended his brother as best man, and the ushers included John L. Swasey of Taunton, John Ducey, Talbot Rantoul, and H. Bowen White of Boston, Frank Knowlton of Weston, and Lee Loomis of Tuxedo Park, New York . . .

The reception was held at the town house of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul, the bride's parents, after which the bridal couple departed on their honeymoon before starting in housekeeping at 276 Marlboro street, where they will be after Oct. 15 . . .

The bride attended the Winsor School before making her debut at a ball at the Somerset in 1932 . . . Mr. Thorndike, who graduated last June from Harvard, belongs to all the exclusive clubs across the Charles . . .

Mrs. Rantoul, the former Lucy Saltonstall, has her sister, Mrs. Charles Auchincloss (Rosamond Saltonstall) of New York, as her house guest for this event and she and Mr. Auchincloss attended the wedding . . .

The bride is the sister of Mrs. Henry A. Murray, Jr., one of Boston's most attractive young matrons . . .

ATTENDS FRIENDS' DEBUT AT BROOKLINE COUNTRY CLUB RECEPTION

Among younger guests at the presentation party for the Misses Frances Burge and Elizabeth Ware, Brookline debutantes, at the Brookline Country Club, was Miss Nancy Byron of Boston.

Irradiated Sun-Wrinkle Oil

Age-Telling Lines About Eyes and Mouth Erased in a Very Short While

By ARLINE GOULD

HAVE GLORIOUS summer days on a white, wind-swept beach put a lot of "sun wrinkles" in your skin?

In spite of all the storm-flag warnings hoisted by us last spring about the perils of too much sunlight on the skin, this season seemed to produce more sun worshipers than ever.

If your complexion has reached the stage where it resembles the hide of an old salt right off a New Bedford whaler, you had better begin corrective measures at once.

There is no evading the truth that the direct rays of the sun toughen the epidermis. Tan is nature's method of building a skin structure that is strong enough to withstand the ravages of the elements.

The woman who takes on a heavy tan year after year is not doing right by her face. By September her skin is in a constant state of dequamation and renewal and needs lubrication badly.

If your skin is dry, you probably have acquired a lot of tiny lines about the eyes. To be sure, they may be only "sun-wrinkles," but unless something is done about them right away, they may deepen and become permanent wrinkles.

What does your mirror reveal to you? Has a delicate tracery of lines suddenly appeared around your eyes, your mouth, your nose because the natural skin oils have been dried by the sun?

Sweet almond oil will smooth away very recent lines in a young skin, but an older skin requires an heavier oil—one that will sufficiently lubricate the skin.

Olive oil this type are a rule very expensive, but we have ferreted one out (it's irradiated with Vitamin D) whose price fits into any lovely lady's budget.

Like all emollients of its kind, it does its best work when applied before retiring and allowed to remain on overnight. Shallow lines should vanish in a week's time.

To learn the name of this sun-wrinkle oil, call Arline Gould, Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000, or write to Miss Gould at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Etiquette of the Cocktail Party

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When an invitation to a cocktail party has been received, should it be answered in any way? The hours are five to seven. Would this be formal or informal?

2—Do the guests just casually leave after 7 o'clock? J.

1—If the invitation for the cocktail party is written on a visiting-card, as it usually is, similar to the form for a tea invitation, and, if there is no request for an answer (no R. S. V. P. or "Please reply"), it is not strictly necessary to answer the invitation.

If there is a request for an answer, you send your answer as soon as possible. You many send your visiting-card with "Thank you so much. I'd love to come on Tuesday." Or you may write a note of acceptance or regret.

Or you may write your acceptance or regret in a formal way, in the third person, since the invitation carries the formal form of your hostess' name.

And very polite people make it a habit to answer the invitation, even if there is not a request for an answer. This is a very courteous thing to do, and naturally pleases the hostess.

A cocktail party is always an informal type of party.

2—If the hours are the usual five-to-seven, you may arrive at any time after five, and leave when you wish.

It is not taken for granted that you arrive at five and stay until seven—but 'tis true that some guests do! But a guest shouldn't arrive much after six thirty at the latest. The cocktail party hostess may have a dinner engagement!

Since the hostess has definitely nominated the hours of her party, guests should take their leave at 7 or soon thereafter.

To the hostess who has an engagement for dinner, it is a problem at this increasingly popular kind of party to "keep mingling" and still to plan how in the world she can keep that later engagement.

Usually she has to resort to the plan of telling one of her close friends of her engagement, and have that friend co-operate by saying, graciously but pointedly:

"We must go, Mary, I know that you have an engagement—and we've already stayed too long. You shouldn't give such attractive parties, or then we would be willing to leave sooner."

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

SPECIAL AGENT

By Jack Lait

"Now you two," he turned to two men, "take this an' get that dame. When you get her out, take her to the Castle. Dinky will drive for you, and he knows the location. Get the dame, that's your job, an' when you get her to the place Dinky takes you to, hold her there. My mouthpiece will be waitin' for you. Tell him to come back here pronto with Dinky. Then you two stay at the hide-out with the dame till I call."

The pair nodded and left the office.

* * *

The pair who had been instructed by Carston stepped into Julie's cell at the federal jail, accompanied by a uniformed warden.

"Miss Gardner, these men are from the D. A.'s office, they are to take you over to his place for a conference."

"Okay," Julie replied as she reached for her cute little hat. "Let's go. Grand Jury in the morning, district attorney for matinee. Where do I play before the night show?"

The jailer laughed at the quip as he stood aside for Julie and her two "guards" to pass At the door, one of the "guards" signed a "receipt" for the "prisoner" and the trio left the building and entered a waiting car.

As they stepped up to the door, Julie recognized Dinky at the wheel. She began to turn, but before she could utter a sound, a gun was jabbed into her side.

"Get in, sister, and no peep outa you. We're goin' places."

Julie regained her composure instantly, and without another second's hesitation, entered the limousine.

With one gunman on each side of her, she asked:

"Where are you taking me?"

"We're goin' to our estate in the country," replied one of the hoodlums.

"Don't tell her nothin', Jake. Carston says this dame squawked to the gran' jury, and anything we tell her she might whisper to some nasty man in a uniform."

Both laughed at the obviously impossible chance of Julie "squawking" to anybody. They then drove on in silence.

* * *

Bill Bradford answered his telephone. It was the district attorney.

"My God, Bill, they've got Julie! Somebody in my own office has been in cahoots with Carston and they got a jail release blank and a couple of phoney cops used it to get her away from jail. They drove off in a big car and she's gone!"

Imported Thugs

"Where'd they take her?" Bradford asked breathlessly."

"We don't know, but by God, Bill, we'll find out."

"We haven't the time." Bill Interrupted. "Get me fifteen good men together quick. I have an idea where she is."

Julie chattered along against time as the car sped toward the Castle, but as she sat between two of Carston's toughs and one of Carston's pet killers loomed before her on the driver's seat, she was far from easy.

Carston must have been satisfied by now, she calculated, that she had been a willing party to the photographing of the books and the testifying which decided the deadly contents.

She knew too well how Carston handled traitors; and in this instance not only a traitor who had turned him up, but one who alone could send him to Alcatraz if she lived to face a Federal jury.

Most probably, too, she surmised, he knew by now that Bill Bradford, the man she loved, had instigated the whole job, and she was more worried over his fate than over her own.

The big, bullet-proof car sped on. It was past the city limits now, squirming around curves.

"I—I never saw you two birds before," she observed to her captors, who had commandeered her out of federal custody in the jail on a forged district attorney's order.

"Naw," said one of them. "Carston imported us from Philly on a special piece o' work. If this is it, I won' have the gall to put in an expense account. Say babe, they don't grow 'em like you in my burg. I'd rather take you ridin' to my house than to him."

"I'd rather be going to yours," sighed Julie, honestly enough.

"Well, if it was anybody but Carston, you would be. I'd take a chance wit' dat sing what's drivin'. But Carston—he'd have me got if he had to chase me to China...Say, when you're out an' on de loose again—oh, blondie!"

"Uhum. When I'm out—"

The car swerved suddenly into a private road up an incline. Julie had never seen the Castle, but she sensed that she was there. A solid metal gate blocked progress.

Dinky, the driver, whom she knew as a Carston "torpedo," sounded his horn—two long, one short, one long; the wall parted, the car drove in, the wall closed behind it. Before them was a grim granite building, a fortress-like structure.

Julie was bundled out and hustled in. She found herself in a large room, lavishly furnished as a living hall, and she was greeted by several of Carston's hoodlums, whom she knew.

"Of all people, you!" exclaimed Rich. "We never t'ought you'd put the finger on de chief after all he done for you."

"Shut up and mind your own business!" snapped Julie, who was in no mood to bandy small talk with small fry.

"Okay, big shot," sneered Rich. "Carston'll be here in a few minutes. You won't sling him no lip. You know what happened to Andrews? No? Well, he sung. We brung him here . . . Foof! Him gone . . . An' it wasn't a shot t'rough his heart, fresh dame. It took hours—hours—take off your hat an' make y'self at home, Miss Gardner."

* * *

Two long, one short, one long . . . the metal gates opened again, a snappy little speedster drew in and out of it leaped Alec Carston. His expression was black and his movements were swift and jerky. He strode into the b' room. His eyes lit on Julie and focused on her, irising down to pinpoints.

"Get out o'here, all but her!" he commanded. And when the others had gone he slammed the door and advanced on her.

"So—you done it—you—the tramp I took in out o' the gutter an' trusted an' treated like a daughter."

Julie didn't know how much he knew, so she said nothing, letting him spill his wrath.

"Who photographed them books?" he roared.

"I didn't see. Two government men locked me in my sitting-room, and when they came out again one of them made me come along."

"Oh, yeah? An' who signed that paper sayin' Young wasn't your attorney?"

Julie's Story

"I don't know," lied Julie. "I didn't."

"The dirty crooks! They forged your signature! I—I didn't think you'd do that to me . . . what'd you tell the grand jury?"

"Nothing, chief, nothing. I refused to waive my constitutional rights."

"Then—on what'd they indict me?"

"Don't ask me. That D. A. sure didn't make a chum out of me. I guess he just took a shot in the dark, hoping he'd develop some evidence by cross-examining me as to what the symbols and figures on those pages mean."

Carston's mouth went to a straight, thin line.

"I thought maybe that was the scheme," he said, and bounded across the room and shut the door behind him with a wallop. Carston beckoned Rich into a corner and whispered:

"I don't know if she's on the up-an'-up or is crossin' me up. Anyway, she's got to go."

"Yeh, chief."

"We ain' safe as long as she's alive. If she's on the level, it's too bad. If she ain't—she should o' got it sooner. If the D. A. ever gets a-hold o' her he can make her testify. By givin' her immunity she can't plead she won't incriminate herself, see? An' even a game dame is still a dame, an' if she opens up—Alcatraz—or the chair for all of us.

"Now, there'll be one hell of a stink over stealin' her out o' the clink an' of course it'll be laid right at my door, so we have to be a hun'ed per cent in the clear . . . Not a trace, un'erstand?"

"Yeh, chief."

"Go down cellar an' ready the quicklime. When she goes in, be sure she ain' got a ring or a garter-buckle or anything metal what won't dissolve. The D. A. is sinnin' by now an' that Bill Bradford is nuts about her an' he's nobody's chuck or push-over. There'll be diggin' on this disappearance like there never was on any before. So we got to play safe an' double safe."

"Okay, chief."

Rich started for the door. It opened from without and Dinky's head came in.

"Chief," he called, "on the 'phone . . . Bill Bradford."

"Ouch!" said Carston. "Tell him I'm—no, wait. I'll answer."

Finding Expression For Spiritual Ideals

Jesus' religion is designed for a man and wife with five children in a crowded modern apartment. The spirit of Jesus makes life workable in our modern situations. Yet the widespread question is, how? How can we practice this religious way of life today? Many of us feel that our manner of life is not really representing us. We are caught in swirling tides, and swept into uncongenial practices. The tyranny of economic facts and the trend of social customs daily deflect us, and leave our soul's sacred hopes painfully unexpressed.

We must seek and find expression for our spiritual ideals. We must learn, as the early Christians did, how to translate religion into action. The word must become flesh anew. For unless we translate our religious aspirations into action they wither within us.

Yet if God is, He is also with us, active within consciousness. It is momentarily possible to draw upon Him, and life is changed from an anxious fear to a vast adventure as soon as we lay hold on God, our available and adequate Ally. We replace the slave psychology for the sense of sonship. Jesus lived and died to make us humans sure of God. He came, as He comes today, in the inner world of consciousness, saying! "Be of good cheer—according to your faith be it unto you."

And disciples will find, with St. Paul, the twin marvels revealed in human experience that (a) "I can do all things through Him that strengtheneth me;" and (b) that "All things work together for good to them that love God."

Guild Lecture on Crime

The Guild of St. Elizabeth will present the Rev. Peter A. Crumbly O. F. M. at a benefit gathering in aid of the guild's day nursery at the Copley-Plaza Sunday afternoon, November 3.

Father Crumbly, who is one of the nation's foremost authorities on crime prevention and who has had more than 35 years' experience in this field of social work, will deliver an address on "Youthful Criminals; What Is Our Responsibility to Them?" The discussion is open to the public.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Girls Interested In Married Men--- Please Read

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The papers have been full of the case of a woman of 35 who shot and killed her rival—a girl in the early 20's.

The husband, who cuts a most unheroic figure in this affair, had this girl live under the same roof with his wife for several years.

The husband, after several drinks, told his wife he wanted her to get a divorce, so he could marry his young secretary. So the wife got a pistol and shot the girl. I know exactly how that woman felt from my own parallel case.

Twice I have loaded a pistol and made up my mind to kill the woman who has broken up my home. I have refrained from doing this only because I do not want my chil -en to suffer the stigma of having a mother who has been tried for murder. But there are times when I wonder if even the thought of my children will keep me from murder.

WRONGED WIFE.

The primitive satisfaction a man of woman gets from murder is short-lived. If you read of the emotions of people who have slain from hatred, they always regret bitterly the murders they commit in the heat of passion. The next day they may say, "I'm glad I did it," but they do not say that while waiting for their trials, when they have been sentenced to life or to the electric chair.

The satisfaction produced by murder pays poor dividends, and think what a handicap a crime like this would be to your children. Who would want to marry a boy or girl whose mother had been tried for murder?

Try and fill your life with something else than these thoughts of vengeance, which, if put into effect, will react on you and your children.

Meantime, young ladies who regard married men as fair game might study this woman's letter profitably.

COZY SPECTATOR SPORTS OUTFITS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

FOR campus or country, in three outfits sketched here today will find a warm place in any fall wardrobe.

Although two are provided with swell coats of their own, all three will get along beautifully with the heavier coats we'll wear at football games and other Arctic diversions just around the corner.

There is real swank in the soft-tailored rabbit wool frock suit, right below. Note striped silk scarf in the Bruyere neckline.

The dress in the ensemble, center, is plaided rabbit and white, wool in oxford and white, and the lining of the plain oxford swagger coat matches it. Buttons and buckle are bright hardware.

The two-piece rabbit wool frock left combines a plain fabric skirt with a white-striped matching cloth blouse. The side closing of the blouse brings in vertical stripes against the crosswise manipulation.

There is no end to the fun one can have with them when it comes to adding gay scarfs, hats, stockings and shoes.

You've noticed that this autumn we can find colorful sports shoes in such woodsy shades as oxblood and green, for instance, and it's dresses like this which are meant for ensembling with them, very largely.

* * *

The trio were designed for the girl who is going back to school, but their sophistication and clear-cut lines recommend them to any woman who can wear a misses' size. The plain wool suit, upper left, is an especially good number for the woman around town, and just the outfit for those who linger in the country for the ripe autumn weather, for it's a born commuter.

* * *

Any of the smart felt hats of the fedora type, including the tweedy type which are new this season, will go well with these clothes; a tweed topcoat, a polo coat, or any of the sports coats are right in step with them.

Cooking

Stuffing Improves Many Foods

By MARTHA LEE

IF YOU WONDER just how to prepare a dish to give it a brand new look and a fine, full flavor fill it to the brim with stuffing.

Don't think the kind of stuffing we put inside our turkey and other fowl covers the field. There is a stuffing for every purpose.

Vegetables, fruit, cake, steak, salad—all these and more may be stuffed, with sparkling and savory results.

How about making that steak "go farther" and taste better by filling it with a succulent stuffing of delicious rice? Or glorifying the onions with an appropriate filling? Stuffed oranges delight the young thing in the family, and warm gingerbread stuffed with a creamy filling makes guests demand the recips. Stuffed bananas are new as next week, too.

STUFFED STEAK

2 cups boiled rice
2 tablespoons chopper parsley
Paprika
1½ pounds round steak or flank steak
1 teaspoon onion juice

Combine the rice and seasonings. Pound the steak until thin, sprinkle with salt, spread with a layer of the rice stuffing three-fourths inch thick. Roll and fasten with skewers or toothpicks, or tie with string while cooking. Place in a deep oven dish. Add enough hot water to come up one-half inch in pan. Cover, cook in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about two hours. Remove the cover to brown and thicken the stock to serve as gravy. Serves 6.

STUFFED ORANGES

6 oranges
½ cup dates
½ cup nut meats
½ cup cocoanut
1 egg white
½ cup powdered sugar

Cut a slice from the end of each orange and carefully remove the pulp. If feasible, cut edges of orange shell in scallops. Mix orange pulp, sliced dates, chopped nuts and coconut together and refill the orange shells. Beat the egg white until stiff, add sugar gradually and continue beating. Cover top of oranges with the meringue. Bake in a slow oven (275 deg. F.) for 15 minutes or until the meringue is brown. Serve warm, sprinkled with coconut. Serves 6.

STUFFED ONIONS

6 Bermuda onions
12 salted crackers
¼ cup ground cooked meat
2 tablespoons shortening
Salt and pepper
2 cups medium white sauce
½ cup grated cheese

Peel and parboil onions in boiling salted water. Drain and remove centers. Chop centers and combine with crumbled crackers, meat, shortening and seasoning. Fill onions with this mixture. Place them in a buttered baking dish. Cover with medium white sauce and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake covered 15 minutes in a hot oven (450 deg. F.). Uncover and brown. Serves six.

'BALANCE IN MOTION' IS GUIDE TO FOOT BEAUTY

New Principle Built Into Shoes

By ANNICE BRINK
Fashion Editor

MANY TIMES we've heard the preachment, "Those unlovely wrinkles between your eyebrows are caused by the uncomfortable shoes you're wearing!"

But, unless nature forced us to, it was unlikely that we clambered out of our pretty shoes into the "corrective" shoes recommended. For however slight, the "corrective" flavor was undeniably there.

Women love graceful shoes, and one of the hardest things to accept is the low, spatulate heel of the corrective shoe. It does seem, therefore, that an entirely new line of shoes that has arrived in a Boston shop is destined for immediate and overwhelming success. For heels as high as you like them may be worn, without disrupting their work.

"Balance in motion" is the principle, simply stated, on which they are built. And in back of it is ten years of study and experimentation by the scientists of the department of surgery of the School of Medicine and Dentistry of the University of Rochester.

* * *

It is said that marvelous things have been accomplished in alleviating and correcting various foot troubles, though the word "corrective" is not used in connection with the principle or the results.

It is claimed that "violent and unnatural exertion of the feet in walking in unbalanced shoes starts a cycle of foot troubles. Muscles exert their pull by contracting, by becoming shorter and thicker. The shoe that is fitted only to the width and length of the foot at rest does not provide for this. As a result, those muscles that are continually used in regaining equilibrium are not only overtaxed, but they have to do their work without adequate room in which to do it."

The bobbing and wobbling of women in incorrect shoes has led to the naming of the three types of gait: The snowshoe gait, the turkey walk, and the hitch hike. They're self-explanatory, and if one sounds only too familiar to you, you'd better investigate these new three-dimensional balanced shoes, and walk in beauty and grace from then on!

Disorders of the Thyroid Gland Need Care

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

NOT LONG ago I told you about a rare medical emergency known as "status lymphaticus."

In this condition there is an enlargement of the thymus gland. It is found in infants and young children and if neglected is not without danger to life.

Today I want to tell you of certain thyroid disturbances found in children.

Disorders of the thyroid gland frequently occur in childhood. Yet only about 1 per cent of the thyroid patients recently seen at the Lahey Clinic in Boston were under 15 years of age. It is probable that many cases of thyroid disease in children are overlooked or confused with other ailments.

A child afflicted with a thyroid disease complaints of symptoms quite similiar to those of the adult sufferer. Thyroid disorders in children are usually due to some disturbance in the physical development. Such a disturbance may lead to a lack of secretion, to over-secretion or to a change in the quality of the secretion of the gland.

SWOLLEN THYROID

In former years a condition called "cretinism," caused by a lack of thyroid secretion, was more commonly encountered in this country than it is now. It was especially prevalent in "goitre districts," certain geographical regions where it prepared, and was also found in children born of parents suffering from goitre.

In goitre the thyroid gland becomes swollen in its efforts to increase the supply of "thyroxin," the secretion produced by the thyroid. I am glad to say that this form of disorder is now seldom seen.

A child afflicted with cretinism fails to grow, remains a dwarf, and is very low in his mental development. These unpleasant symptoms are caused by definite changes in the thyroid gland.

The disease may be checked by the internal administration of thyroid extract. Pregnant women with goitre are given iodine during their pregnancy to insure against the birth of a goitrous child.

ANOTHER FORM

"Colloid goitre" is another form of trouble in which there is an enlargement of the thyroid gland due to less serious causes. This is the most common form of thyroid disturbance met in childhood. It may be the natural reaction of the thyroid gland to the increased physical activity of the child. But it is also related to an iodine deficiency. As a rule this form of thyroid disturbance occurs between the ages of two and twenty years. Rarely does it occur in infancy.

In such cases, small amounts of iodine are prescribed. Sometimes its use is extended over a period of several months. In some cases the swelling may disappear within six months, but in others the condition may persist for several years.

Another form, known as exophthalmic goitre, may occur in the child at any age after two years. In it the gland is highly overactive. It is almost identical with the disease as seen in adults.

Like the adult, the child may have a tumor of the thyroid. In such instances surgery becomes necessary. The tumor should be removed as soon as it is recognized, because delay in operation may lead to serious changes. In every instance, repeated visits to the doctor are advised, so that the progress of the young sufferer can be carefully watched.

Answers to Health Queries

A. K. G. Q.—How long is whooping cough contagious?

A—Whooping cough is contagious all through the time the cough continues.

A. A. K. Q.—For the last 10 years I have had a recurrence of a burned feeling on the top of my tongue. This is generally accompanied by a bitter taste. What would you advise?

A.—This may be due to hyperacidity, caused by improper diet. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Abolishing the Preference Rule

There are sufficient pitfalls in the paths that lead to glory in bridge without having a misnomer contribute to the process of leading fine hands to the grave.

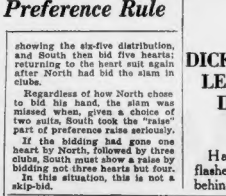

For this reason I vote for the abolition of the term, "Preference Raise."

It refers to a bid which shows a preference, but it decidedly is not a raise.

When Geoffrey Mott Smith and George Unger had played the hand below and reached for the traveling score slip they were amazed to find that over half the teams had failed to reach a slam.

It requires no super-expert to see that this hand should reach six, and yet a fine field playing in the New England championships scorde a poor average with it:

North, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♣	Pass
4♡	Pass	6♠	Pass
6♣	Pass	6♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

With a minimum or near-minimum two suiter, it is sometimes desirable to bid a five-card major suit before a six-card minor, thus avoiding the necessity of reversing later on.

When the hand was correctly opened one club, after South's one spade response North forced with three hearts, in preference to an inferential forcing bid of only two.

It was at this point that so many South players caused the slam to be missed. A mere raise to four hearts is too weak from the standpoint of honor cards; yet with only three to Jack in support of a suit which partner has bid secondarily, a skip to five is too strong.

In this case South therefore deliberately chose the weakest possible bid—a mere preference raise—but he did so determined to take further action over North's next bid.

North properly rebid the hearts, showing the six-five distribution, and South then bid five hearts; returning to the heart suit again after North had bid the slam in clubs.

Regardless of how North chose to bid his hand, the slam was missed when, given a choice of two suits, South took the "raise" part of preference raise seriously.

If the bidding had gone one heart by North, followed by three clubs, South must show a raise by bidding not three hearts but four.

In this situation, this is not a skip-bid.

DICKY REVEALS LEE CHOW IS INNOCENT

CHAPTER 453

Harriet Braithwaite flashed out of the door behind me as I asked Dicky if the Chinese hatchet men had gone, and, passing me, laid a compelling hand upon her brother's arm.

"Tell me first, Richard," she said imperatively, "Is Edwin safe—all right?"

Dicky looked down at her, quizzically.

"I'll tell the world he's all right," he said. "He's some doc, that boy. He did a swell job for us down there, both in keeping Hugh in shape—and for other things. As for 'safe'"—he grinned widely at her—"that I cannot say. Our Katrina is a pretty smooth proposition, you know. A darned attractive woman. I shouldn't feel too easy about him."

Oh! Why had a malicious fate permitted him to say just that at this particular time! I wailed the question to myself, not daring to look at Harriet, even though I "played up" by saying carelessly:

A CARELESS REMARK

"He's probably too busy to know whether Katherine's attractive or has a humpback or a squint. Did you say that he had kept Hugh in shape? From the way Hugh looked the last time I saw him, Edwin must have had his work cut out for him."

I was conscious, too late, that in my anxiety to cover up Dicky's "break" I had made a worse one of my own. It evidently was not what my husband calls "on the tree list" for me to display any interest in Hugh, and though no one save a jealous husband could have construed my casual inquiry as indicating undue concern, I happened to be speaking to just that variety of man.

I knew that Dicky was too proud to let his sister see his jealousy, but he could not disguise it from me. I knew it by a sudden tightening of the lines around his mouth and by the subtle change in his voice, which, although it kept its gay casualness, yet had a frigid undercurrent.

"Edwin had just that thing," he said. "But he certainly did a good job. You will be delighted, I am sure, to know that while Hugh is very weak, his session with the Chinese hatchet men has done him no serious injury.

There was a sardonic emphasis to the words, "you will be delighted," which I understood fully, but which I carefully ignored.

"That must be very gratifying to Edwin," I said, and turned to Harriet.

"Now that you're assured your husband is safe, and has done his usual brilliant work, won't you go back to bed and try to get some sleep?"

Purposely I put an urgent note into my voice, and Harriet responded with an alacrity that I guessed was born of Dicky's jest, which I feared she had taken in earnest.

"Yes, I think I can sleep now," she said, and though I was sure she was speaking mendaciously, I was gratified that her reluctance to see Katherine and Edwin together would keep her in my room for the twenty-four hours I had asked her to rest, thus giving me the opportunity of talking with Edwin.

"But I must beg your pardon, Margaret," she said with the meticulous courtesy which is always hers. "In my anxiety over Edwin, I interrupted an answer Richard was about to give you. I am interested, too. Have those awful men gone?"

"Yes, they have departed," Dicky rejoined. "The chief and Harry Underwood are taking them to a spot very near the abode of their 'boss man,' who, from all accounts, is the devil himself, unhung. They are in mortal terror of him, and they want to be left bound and gagged, so that when he finds them they can 'save face' for not having done a complete job on me, as he had planned.

"They are going to tell him a weird tale of a whole band of armed men who surrounded them, captured them and tortured them to make them tell who was behind their effort; and they are going to make him believe, with our full permission, that his scheme has succeeded, and that we believe Lee Chow to be the person who originated the scheme to murder me."

"Dicky!" I gasped. "Then you mean that I was not Lee Chow who planned the attempt on your life?"

"He had no more to do with it than an unborn babe," Dicky said. "We've established that fact beyond doubt. He is completely exonerated."

AUSTEN LAKE

Baer's Face Red Before Celebrated Guests

Speculator, N. Y., Sept. 21—There is heartfelt relief under Max Baer's lemon colored jumper.

Tomorrow the woodsman's axe that has calloused his hands will be put away in the log outhouse. His heavy training mittens will be stowed in the property trunk.

AUSTEN LAKE

Then begins the pleasanter task of nursing his energies for the Tuesday morning's moment when a silver amphibian plane will coast into the lake before his forest home.

The worst of the drudge is ended. A little bag tapping, some light shadow dancing, a few canters over the mountain roads and school will be over.

He has hated it, he says, hated the mountains which tumble away in layers of mist, hated the night hush, the aching emptiness and the oppressive boredom.

The russets and purples of early autumn? He has hated these too. The ground squirrels, the leaping trout, the scent of fir and balsam, phooie!

Now he craved crowds, the hum of traffic, light, music and laughter.

"Eighty hours to freedom," he said, like a schoolboy facing examination.

Eighty hours to ice tinkling in tall glasses, semi-nude femininity on the dance floors, midnight leisure and he-abed mornings.

* * *

Troopers Garrison Baer Camp

Noticeably as zero-hour nears, an increasing number of troopers in mouse-gray, men with firm jaws and uncompromising eyes, are stationing about Baer's timbered asylum.

The training bottles, which have been wide open, are sealed with distinctive tape and guarded by a watchman, wise in the ways of the prize fight racket.

The early air of camp innocence is being replaced by suspicion, lest unknowns with an angle drop a spoonful of distress into the fighter's chicken gumbo or insert a pill in his biscuit batter.

Possibly nobody ever actually sneaked any drugs into any professional fighter's rations, and all the picturesque yarns which have become part of the ring's lore are nothing but imaginative panderings of excited handlers and romantic sport authors.

Jim Jeffries at Reno was said to have suffered cramps from something dropped in his soup, but calmer judgment says that he suffered only from fistic doses dropped on his chin.

Legends have arisen about Jack Dempsey rising from breakfast on the day of his fight with Tunney, feeling unwell about his center. And after he suffered a variety of solid busts from Tunney, the notion grew that unscrupulous persons had poisoned the breakfast cream.

* * *

Max Snarls After Thumping

The fine air of cordiality is diminishing in the nerve centers of the camp, as Baer's ring family becomes infected with the tightening tension.

A wanpish humor is apparent at the door of the training hut where the fighters harness, and admission is only to the intimates. Cigarettes are taboo in the enclosure lest Baer's breathing air become polluted.

Even the ring janitors who sweep up the litter seem sullen and moody.

The former champion let off his first authentic snarl when he took his usual thumping in the presence of distinguished company, including Jimmy Braddock, the temporary champion; Tom Webster, the English journalist, and Yussel Jacobs, the orphaned manager of Max Schmeling.

It was an embarrassing moment during which his sparring mates played rhumbas on his chin and blushed up his middle with right and left hand busts.

The ex-champ was plainly annoyed and let off an airplane propeller blast that aimed to murder the boys. But 19-year-old George Turner backed him against the ropes and fanned his jaw with alternate smacks that sounded like the kisses of a butter paddle.

Baer cursed with soft feeling as his gloves were stripped off and went off to his hut in a huff, refusing entrance to all except the celebrities.

In the later press huddle, though Braddock thought diplomatically that Baer might win, his manager, Joe Gould, said flatly that Louis would hit him with everything but his first-aid kit and, if the fate were kind, Baer might not hear any numerals tolled in his ear until the fourth round.

* * *

Poor Spar-Mates for Louis

It is acknowledged that Max has had 100 per cent better sparring partners than Louis, who is backing away at a squad of black and white derelicts.

Abe Feldman ranks among the leading light-heavyweights and is in line for a shot at Bob Olin's title. And though Turner is an unknown, recently risen from the novice class, a 19-year stripling with adolescent muscles and peach-fuzz on his chin, he has a heart as big as a football and is ring wise beyond his years.

Yet, if an apprentice kid like Turner can give Baer 20 pounds and fling him around the ring, it is logical that Louis, nearer Baer's weight, full-grown, a harder puncher and better boxing master, can do even better.

What I mean is, how, in the gentle name of good sense, can one predict anything else but an artistic hammering for Max on the evidence shown to date?

If there is anything logical in horse form, which prompts race handicappers to rise by the light of the moon and sit on the rails to clock early schooling races, then there is the same something in a fighter's training form.

The physical laws and the long-shot risks are the same in either case.

There are the same comparative elements in next Tuesday night's battle as there would be in a two-horse race between the stake horse Discovery and the selling plater, Brass Monkey.

Discovery might stumble in the stretch. So might Baer fetch Louis a wild, roundhouse pitch on the exact paralyzing spot.

Discovery might pull a shoulder muscle at the barrier getaway. So might Louis fracture his fist on Baer's concrete skull.

These are inherent risks of sport.

If in cold, daylight intelligence, you would prefer Brass Monkey's short end over Discovery, then pick Baer, and give a big barnyard crow if impish fate kicks over the percentage to justify your pick.

Fight Special a Sellout

Party Leaves South Station for New York on Tuesday

At nine o'clock this morning it was announced that all the tickets available in all classes on the Boston Evening American's Louis-Baer Fight Special train on the New Haven lines had been sold.

The fans who rushed for these special "fight-fare-meal-and-berth" tickets will foregather Tuesday at South Station, and steam comfortably on to New York, with a stop at Providence to pick up a carload of fans in that city.

The train will return to Boston immediately after the fight at Yankee Stadium between Joe Louis, the nation's most popular negro boxer, and Max Baer, one-time world's champion heavyweight.

Buses will convey the Special riders to the Stadium from the train, and bring them back to the train after the bout.

HUSKIES Lead "AMINGOS"

Northeastern opened its season against American International Colleges of Springfield, at Nent Field, Brookline, this afternoon.

FIRST PERIOD

The Huskies scored in the middle of the first quarter after a steady power march down the field, in which Al Hankanson, Northeastern, flashed around left end on a 18-yard sweep that netted six points. Hart missed the kick for the extra point.

Score—N. U., 6; A. I. C., 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Coach McCoy of Northeastern sent his second team into action. After five minutes of play Captain Sibley of the Yellowjackets sent a pass which was intercepted by Reed Mahaffey, N. U. fullback, who was downed on the Amingos' 33-yard line.

Rock, Husky quarterback, passed to Benjamin at left end for an 18-yard gain. Mahaffey then crashed through to score. Jay Hart tossed a pass to Benjamin for the extra point.

Score: Northeastern 13, A. I. C. 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Rock, Northeastern quarterback, took the kickoff on his own 37-yard line and ran it down to the Amingo 16-yard marker. Hart then made 6 yards through the line and Hankinson hit the visitors front wall for 7 more.

Hart then crashed through center for the touchdown. Hart missed the try for the extra point.

Score, N. U. 19, Aminco 0.

Northeastern started another march and brought it down to the 6-yard line as the quarter ended.

Score N. U. 19, Aminco 0.

Lions Shut Out Eagles, 35-0

Detroit, Sept. 21—Detroit Lions, showing the same powerful line they had last year, annexed Philadelphia Eagles under a 35-0 score in the pro league football opener here.

Ernie Caddell, former Stanford star, scored three times after sizable runs.

JASPERS CLASH WITH NIAGARA

New York, Sept. 21 (TNS)— Ringing up the curtain on the 1935 Metropolitan football season, Manhattan College met Niagara University here today.

The Jaspers, under the tutelage of Chick Meehan, placed a hard charging line and a fast stepping bac kfield against Niagara.

FIRST PERIOD

In the closing minutes of the quarter, Chic Meehan sent in a new team and on the opening play on the Purple's 33, Tuckey made a first down on the 25.

Vic Fusia, Manhattan's quarterback, got out in the clear off tackle for a touchdown. The try for the extra point failed.

SECOND PERIOD

Meehan's sophomores cashed in on their scoring chance three plays after the second period got underway, and that finished all effective playing for the half. Fumbles, penalities and intercepted passes kept both teams well within the 20 yard lines.

Richard "Ken" Tuckey, got the Jasper touchdown. Fusia tried for the point after with a place kick, but missed.

Score at the end of the half: Manhattan 12, Niagara 0

THIRD PERIOD

Niagara came out and ripped the Jasper defense to shreds. The Purple started its drive on its own 20. Dunn turned the Green's right end for 16 yards, Korach duplicated at the other wing for 14 more, and then, after two sacks at the line moved the Eagles only three yards, Dunn split left guard all the way to the Manhattan 10-yard mark.

They passed on first down, Leonard to Keegan, and went to the one-yard mark.

Dunn smacked over left guard for the score. Korach's kick for the extra point was blocked by Sabatelli.

Score—Manhattan 13, Niagara 0.

Alp Back, Ready To Go to War

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 21—Primo Carnera returned to America on the liner Rex today, said he'd return to Italy when called if war is declared and picked Joe Louis to beat Max Baer in Tuesday's heavyweight bout.

"Louis is quick and shifty," the big Italian said. "Baer swings wide and Louis will go inside of his punches. If there's a knockout, Louis will score it."

Carnera expects to fight Walter Neusel, German heavyweight, in Madison Square Garden, Nov. 1.

CHELSEA Tied in 3rd PERIOD

Chelsea Memorial Stadium —Chelsea High took a 6 to 0 lead over Cooperstown High School of New York here this afternoon at the end of the half in the initial game played at the new high school field. The score came in the second period when Felix Lovinski went over the visitors' goal line on a line plunge.

Chelsea's Red Davis opened the second period with a terrific 53-yard drive, with Lovinski, Ben Mugford and Freddie Lake ripping the New Yorkers' line with line thrusts, Lovinski going over for the score from the two-yard line. Freddie Lake missed the try for the extra point.

Cooperstown came back in the third period and tied the score on a lateral from La Duke to Mercer for 37 yards.

EVERETT Runs Wild IN OPENER

Everett's powerful steam-roller displayed crushing power in marching to a 27-0 lead at halftime over a plucky little Framingham High team at Everett today.

Tom Conley was the star of the Everett attack, garnering the first score on a 50-yard end run. He failed in the try for point. He also scored the second touchdown, running off tackle for ten yards. This time his try for a point was successful.

Sciulo got the third score on a line plunge after a long Everett march downfield. Olson got the extra point. The only score of the second period was tallied by Biacconi, who went over on a line plunge. A forward pass to Sonenti to Leahy got the extra point.

Fitchburg Leads Keene At Half, 14-0

Fitchburg, Sept. 21.—Fitchburg High School romped away to an early lead in its game with Keene, N. H., High at Crocker Field today scoring in the first and second period to take a 14-0 lead at the half.

Fitchburg scored in the first and second period to take a 14-0 lead at the half.

Fitchburg scored in the first period following a 30-yard pass from Glenny to Schragie. The speedy Schragie pulled down the ball and sprinted 15 yards for the touchdown. Glenny place-kicked goal after touchdown

On the opening play of the second period Shattuck sprinted 40 yards for the second touchdown Glenny again kicked goal

OLIN WINS Over Firpo in 3d

Asbury Park, N. J., Sept 21 (AP) — Bob Olin, world light heavyweight champion, knocked out Henry Firpo, Louisville, Ky., veteran, in the third round of their scheduled 15-round bout.

Olin weighed 179, Firpo, 180.

Holy Cross Leads Rhode Island, 19-0

By WALTER KILEY

Worcester, Sept. 21 — Lowering skies threatened to sweep football in on the heels of a storm as Holy Cross and R. I. State met here this afternoon before a crowd of 3500 spectators in the opening football game of the 1935 New England season.

Dr. Eddie Anderson's Crusaders almost dwarfed their light weight opponents and were rated as overwhelming favorites.

The staters appeared resplendent in robin egg blue pants, cream colored shirts and headguards which contrasted sharply with the new silver pants adorning the Purple.

Officials—Referee, W. T. Halloran, Providence; umpire, G. H. Lowe, Lafayette; head linesman, A. R. Lake, Lafayette; field judge, D. J. Kelly, Springfield.

FIRST PERIOD

Rhode Island won the toss and elected to kick off. Holy Cross registered an opening touchdown in rapid fire order. Captain Nickie Morris carried the kick off back eight yards to the Purple 38-yard line.

Daugherty punted on second down and Mudge, State safety man, fumbled, Daughters recovering for the Purple on the State 23-yard line. A pair of running plays were tossed for five yards' loss. Daugherty passed to Rex Kidd over the center of the line, and the latter was thrown by D'Orio on the State two-yard line.

Yablonski went hurtling through center for the touchdown. Kidd kicked the extra point.

Score, H. C. 7; R. I. State 0.

After an exchange of kicks, Morris took the ball on his own 32-yard line and was finally downed on the State 33-yard line. A lateral pass. Dougherty to Yablonski, was good for 15 yards.

Yablonski then swung inside his own left tackle and crashed his way to the goal line for the second Holy Cross touchdown. Kidd failed to kick the point.

Score—H. C. 13, R. I. State 0.

Cupello punted from his own end zone. It was poor and went outside on his own 18-yard line. Dougherty and Morris pounded out a first down on the three-yard line.

Morris cut back through left tackle for a touchdown. Kidd failed to kick the point as the period ended

Score—H. C. 19, R. I. 0.

SECOND PERIOD

R. I. State punted. H. C. ripped off two first downs in succession. Massey and Hanifan carrying. A 15 yd penalty for holding held up the advance, and the Purple was forced to punt.

R. I. collected the second first down of the game as Messina passed 12 yards to Mantenuto. State was forced to kick, however. Massey brought the ball deep into State territory with a 19 yard gallon to the state 28 yard line.

But Hanifan fumbled on the next play. Allen recovering for State Messina a long pass was intercepted by Mautner on the Holy Cross 33-yard line.

Several exchange of punts, State showing a surprise in stubbornness defensively, the period ending as Bartolomeo passed 19 yards to Janiak and 15 yards to McGuane, carrying the ball into State territory

Score—H. C. 19, R. I. 0.

THIRD PERIOD

Holy Cross started a new team in the second half

Action slowed down throughout the first half of the third period, the Staters showing stubborn resistance. Medford's Johnny Mackins carried eight yards and three yards in succession for one of State's rare first downs

Malden Held Scoreless in First Half

Malden High and Wakefield High played dull football this afternoon in the opening half of their game at the Pearl street stadium. The score at half time was Malden 0, Wakefield 0.

Fifty-five hundred people were in the stands and watched the schoolboys fight back and forth in midfield with the exception of a flurry at the end of the second period when Malden threatened. Wakefield was penalized to the one foot line and the kick out went to Malden at the 25 yard line

A pausing attack by the Malden High squad failed as the half ended.

Medford Crushes Concord 33-0

Medford's gridiron juggernaut rolled over a plucky Concord High team at Fulton Field here this afternoon and when the game had ended the Medford eleven was on the long end of a 33-0 decision.

The Blue and White squadrons out-classed their lighter opponents. Captain Fred Wakeham, Medford all-scholastic end, was all over the field throughout the game and backed a Concord punt to account for one of the Medford scores.

Nahigian, hard-running back also played a fine game and tallied for the Medford cause

The score by periods

Medford	0	13	0	—33
Concord	0	0	0	—0

Joe Louis Has Rival From Detroit

Chicago, Sept. 21 (INS)—Another Detroit Negro loomed on the heavyweight prizefight horizon today, in pursuit of his fellow townsman's fame and fortune.

He is Lorenzo Pack who followed Joe Louis through the ranks of the golden glovers into professionalism, and last night scored his sixth straight victory, with an eighth round technical knockout of Art Sykes, Elmira, N. Y.

25,000 AT ROCKINGHAM RACES

IRISH Hero Wins FIRST

PEACEFUL IN SECOND

By Ed Cogswell

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., Sept. 21—With the Bennington Handicap for $5000 added money the feature event of this afternoon the largest crowd of the meeting was brought out, over 25,000 being present when the maiden two-year-olds paraded to the post in the initial race.

No less than six of the dozen starters in the first race received a strong play, so utterly at sea were the talent. Small Devil beat the flag at the start, opened a gap of six length going into the far turn, but in the stretch ride, weakened badly, being only capable of finishing third.

Irish Hero, from the stable of G L. Arvin, and Mauve Decade made the battle at the end, the former winning by a length.

Maiden Dream, Playful Tour and Sighting Bar raced noses apart in the second 'til well down the long lane to the judges, when Jockey Stevens picked up on Peaceful for a tremendous rush of speed, with Cash Book in close attendance.

The pair passed the pack and Peaceful gained the decision by a length over Cashbook. Sighting Bar was third, a nose back of Cash Book. Mutuels paid $13.10 on the victor.

Festoon, from the stable of Mrs. J. J. Dolan, was claimed by B. J. Hill for $2000.

3 Wilson Picks

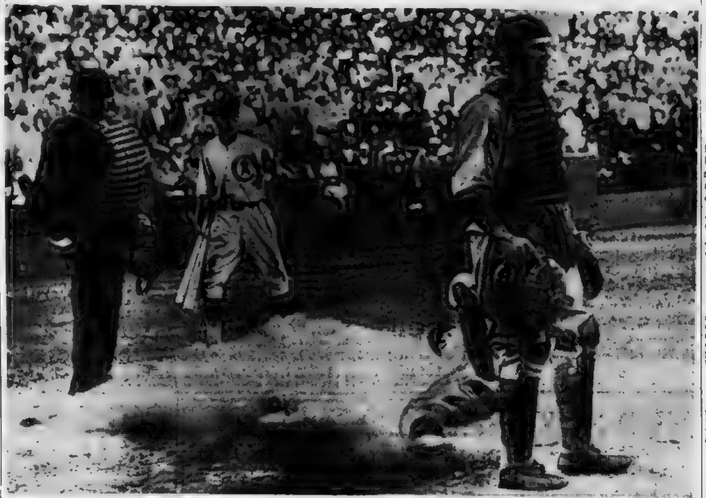

Getting the worst of the start, General A., favorite for the third event, had a stern chase getting to the leaders. At the far turn he was on even terms with Toana and Great Lover, but in a wonderful stretch ride, J. Rosen got General A. up in time to nick by a head from Toana, with Great Lover in the hole position. Payoff was $5.10 on General A.

The victory of General A. marked the third straight winner of the day picked by the American handicapper, Dave Wilson, he having previously selected Irish Hero in the first and Peaceful in the second.

Bounding Count, from the stable of C. P. Chappell, was claimed by Harry Howard for $1500.

As a prelude to the $5000 Bennington Handicap was the Derry Handicap with Hope to Do a slight choice. The favorite and Can't Remember raced heads apart till well home, when J. Stout sharply brought Accolade up on the outside and won by a length from Hope to Do with Can't Remember back in third place. Payoff on Accolade was $11.60.

Accolade followed in close pursuit of the early leaders, swung to the outside in the stretch and, wearing down the leaders drew clear in the last furlong. Hope To Do, under urging while racing with Can't Remember, was placed under punishment when the winner challenged and, despite holding on stoutly, was not good enough. Can't Remember showed speed from the start, much used in racing with Hope To Do and weakened in the stretch run. Candy Prince, forced back in the run to the turn, was unable to reach the leaders. Old Rab never could enter [illegible] contention racing well back all the way.

M'COY BATTERS LOU BROUILLARD

12,000 SEE AL WIN

By Sam Cohen

Boxing climbed back into public favor as 12,000 fans saw Al McCoy, fighting the greatest bout of his career, chop down Lou Brouillard of Worcester to win the unanimous decision in a ten-round bout at the Boston Garden.

'Twas the old story of a good little fighter against a good big fighter, for Brouillard spotted McCoy eight pounds and all but got knocked out for his efforts.

Brouillard, who seldom gives vent to his feelings, cried after the bout.

"The weight licked me" he said. "I'll never fight a light-heavyweight again

"I came in at 162¾ pounds only by eating spaghetti and drinking beer, and I couldn't get out of my own way."

McCoy weighed 170¾.

Brouillard did appear to be sluggish, and he began to tire early. In the eighth round he seemed dead on his pins as McCoy cut loose with an outburst of lethal punches that almost rocked him to sleep.

$15,985 Gross Gate at Garden

Boxing proved that it was on the way back at the Boston Garden last night when a crowd of more than [illegible]00 fans attended the Goodwin A. C. bouts.

The gross receipts were $15,985 and the net receipts, $14,353. The official paid attendance was 12,036.

This is the biggest gate for boxing here since the Boston Evening American Xmas Basket Fund Show, also held under the auspices of the Goodwin A. C., at the Boston Garden last December.

LOU GAME 'UN

It was one of the greatest battles in ring history, and it marked the rise of a truly great fighter, who once served as Brouillard's sparring partner.

McCoy had everything a great fighter ever possesed and it was no fault of his that he did not knock out Brouillard in the late stages of the match. He took every round of the fight.

Brouillard, who climbed into the ring a 10-7 favorite, never was in the running, and only a fighting heart and a well trained body kept him on his pins.

Outboxed and outslugged, Brouillard kept pounding forward, but the steady battering took a heavy toll.

In the eighth round he began to tire as McCoy blasted forth with two fisted attacks that would have felled any other fighter of his weight in the world.

At times Brouillard clutched the calm and confident McCoy to stand up, and at other times he reeled dizzily on his feet as McCoy's punches poured on his unprotected face.

LEFT DID IT

From the eighth to the tenth it was even money that Brouillard would not last, but on each occasion he was fighting at the bell, his face a blotch of red patches from the pounding he had taken.

Reeling to his corner in the eighth, Brouillard surprised everybody by coming out full of fight and hope when the bell sounded again.

Once in the ninth it looked as if he might yet pull a hopeless struggle out of the fire when he opened a deep gash above McCoy's left eye.

But McCoy was never to be denied, and he only fought back harder, and as the bell sounded for the finish of the fight he was giving Brouillard an unmerciful shellacking on the ropes, each punch rocking the pudgy Worcester veteran.

McCoy fought a well planned battle. He started out to cut down Brouillard with a relentless left hand attack, first cutting away with a sharp left jab and then chopping it down with a left hook.

His blows were never wasted and fell with uncanny accuracy on all parts of Brouillard

Brouillard was completely bewildered and threw caution to the winds, whalling away at times like a novice.

The preliminary bill was also one of the best in years. In the eight round semifinal Tiger Terry Warrenton of Nova Scotia got up off the floor in the first round to knock out Clayton Bettino of Dorchester in the second Honey Mellody of Charlestown displayed some real punching power when he flattened Lou Hardcastle of Philadelphia in the fourth round of another scheduled eight rounder.

Jack Sharkey's new heavyweight, Frank Connelly, stopped Bucky Rogers of Quincy in one round, a split eye putting a finish to a lopsided match.

Dave Castilloux of Waterville, Me., defeated Johnny Bangs of Charlestown in six fast rounds, while in the opening four rounder Dante Yanetti of Chelsea continued his sensational streak by stopping Stanley Morris of Brockton in two heats.

'I'LL STOP BAER WITHIN TEN ROUNDS'—LOUIS

Mr. Boston

Louis 8 to 5 But--

—By Jack Conway—

JOE LOUIS is an 8-to-5 favorite over Max Baer in their 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium on next Tuesday night.

Baer is undoubtedly in better condition right now than he was the night he lost his championship to Jimmy Braddock. The speculative element, however, believes Baer will have to stage more than an ordinary comeback to get past the "Brown Bomber."

• • •

Max Waxman, manager of Jack Dempsey, is picking Baer to win. This is to be expected in view of the fact Dempsey will be in Baer's corner. The former champion is interested in the Baer management.

Mr. Boston

• • •

The advance sale for the big scrap has passed the $700,000 mark. The $3.45 admission tickets, calling for bleacher seats, were placed on sale today.

This was done to avoid thousands storming the Yankee Stadium on Tuesday night. In the event of a complete sell-out before Tuesday night, the streets in the vicinity of the Yankee Stadium will be roped off and admission will be only on a ticket.

• • •

I was offered two tickets in the fourth row today at $80 each. Some of the agencies are asking as high as $100 a ticket for this kind of a location.

• • •

WALTER O'HARA, owner of Narragansett Park, left for Providence after taking in a few New York shows with Mrs. O'Hara. The boss of Narragansett is planning to return here for the Baer-Louis bout.

• • •

Tony Palazola, who used to train Jack Sharkey, is picking Baer to win.

"I am tossing out Baer's bout with Braddock," said Palazola. "Every important fighter Louis licked was softened up by Baer. Max knocked out Carnera and Levinsky before they met Louis."

• • •

Pete Reilly is also stringing along with Baer. Pete has been at Baer's camp for several days and sends word back to New York that Max is physically fit.

• • •

HYPE IGOE, boxing editor of the New York Journal who has seen all the great fighters in action since the days of the immortal John L. Sullivan, passed through New York on his way to Pompton Lakes, after spending four weeks at Baer's camp.

"Baer is being criticized because he has been talking a great deal about Louis," said Hype. "All great fighters from the days of Sullivan have always discussed their opponents. John L. used to say some pretty rough things about the man he was going to fight."

"Who do you think is going to win?" I asked Hype.

"I pick Baer to win by a knockout," he replied. "It has been ballyhooed as such a punching battle I wouldn't be surprised if Louis turned in a poor fight.

"Like every other boxer, Joe probably has at least one poor fight in his system. This will give Baer a chance to score a kayo."

• • •

CURLEY GRIEVE, sports editor of the San Francisco Examiner, heads the California delegation which is here for the bout. California is rooting for Baer to win.

• • •

I MET BARNEY ROSS, world welterwieght champion, in Jack Dempsey's restaurant

"Who will win?" I asked Barney.

"It is anybody's fight," he replied.

"I look for Louis and Baer to both go in there tossing punches. In such an event anything can happen. It may be all over inside of four rounds."

I asked Ross what he thought about Cerifino Garcia, Filipino boxer who had him on the floor twice in the first round of their recent bout in San Francisco.

"Garcia can hit all right," answered Ross. "He nailed me while I was cold in the first round.

"Between the first and second rounds my seconds worked on me frantically. Art Winch, my manager, was very excited. Just before it was time for me to go out for the second round, Winch seized me by my right arm.

"Do you know who I am?" demanded Winch.

"Tell me my name," he pressed.

"Art Winch," I replied.

"This convinced Art I had recovered from the effects of Garcia's punches."

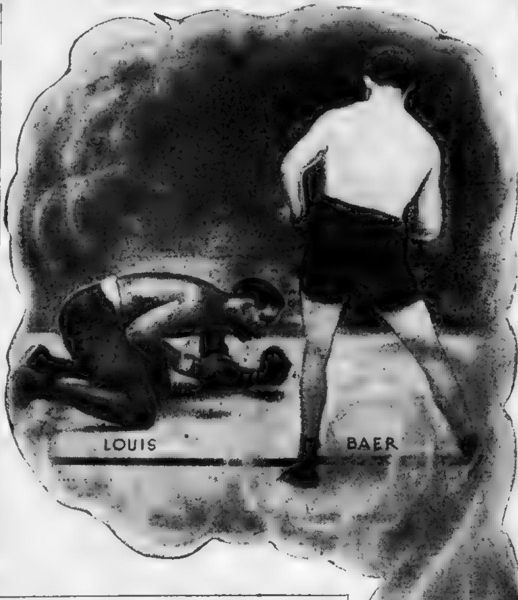

• • •

LOUIS didn't work yesterday, but will be back at the training grind today. I shall be in the press row, and shall give my size-up of the "Brown Bomber" in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

• • •

The Louis camp believes the "Brown Bomber" will score a knockout inside of ten rounds.

PLEASANT FIRESIDE DREAMS

'Baer's Clowning Won't Upset Me'

'No Man Will Smile Long When I Hit Him'—Louis

This is the third of a series of articles by Joe Louis as told to Bob Murphy. This series will take you through the last minute preparations for the fight right up to the time Louis enters the ring.

By Joe Louis
As Told to Bob Murphy

Pompton Lakes, Sept. 21—People ask me how Baer's clowning is going to affect me. Some of them seem to think when he starts playing around in the ring I will let him upset me. That will never happen.

I watched Max Baer clown away his world heavyweight championship in the match with Jimmy Braddock. That should convince him and every one else there is no payoff on clowning.

Baer gets a solid lick that hurts and he backs off and tries to make the crowd think it is all a joke.

It's just like a person falling down on hard concrete when there are people around watching.

The more you are hurt the more you try to smile as you get up.

When I hit Maxie Baer out there in Yankee Stadium, and he starts clowning, I am just going to say to myself: "Now I've hurt him. I've got him going and he is trying to laugh it off."

JOE LOUIS

He is not going to fool me with any of that clowning. I'll just keep moving in on him.

And the more he smiles when I hit him the more I'll know he is hurt. No man is going to smile long when I start hitting him.

It doesn't bother me that Dempsey is to be in his corner. It's Baer that must do the fighting, and I've seen enough of Baer to know he can be hit easily.

I'll box today and tomorrow. But I'm really ready right now.

I've heard about Baer's tactics at the weighing in ceremonies, especially the time he plucked hairs from Primo Carnera's chest and repeated:

"He loves me, he loves me not."

Carnera lost his head, and many say Baer got his goat to such an extent he really won the fight right there.

I'm not worrying about anything like that. I'm sure Baer is too smart to try such clown tactics on me.

The story about me sending him word not to say anything about my fiancee is all wrong.

I never did any such thing. In the first place, I know he is far too smart to try such cheap clown tactics.

Baer is the first fighter I ever heard of who is able to get people to discuss his clowning ability more than his fighting ability.

This is to be a fight at Yankee Stadium, so far as I am concerned I'm coming out to give the people what they pay to see—a fight.

Clowns belong in circuses, not in the ring.

If dreams would only come true, Max Baer would already have knocked out Joe Louis. Here is Baer sitting by the fireside at his log cabin home at Speculator, N. Y., where he is training for his approaching battle with the Brown Bomber. A staff artist depicts Baer's thoughts as he watches the smoke rising from his fireplace.

BOMBER Ridicules MAX

IS 'GIFT FROM SUCKER TRADE'

By Curley Grieve
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 21—Joe Louis, the black-eyed, brown-skinned bomber, unburdened his soul on the subject of Max Baer here, handing the former heavyweight champion a nice package of compliments, generously wrapped in poison ivy.

Here are a few of the things the conqueror of Primo Carnera, King Levinsky and all other professional opponents he has faced, had to say about his Tuesday night opponent:

"He's a palooka. He can't punch. He can't box. He can't stand up under the punishment he's sure to get. He has only one punch—a right that starts from the canvas.

"He might just as well leave his left parked at home. I'll stop him within 10 rounds sure."

MIND ON MARVA

The only excuse I can find for such a bold attack upon Baer's reputation is that Joe is a bit "teched in the head," if you want to be technical, I mean heart.

Louis will be married the day of the fight to Marva Trotter, Chicago miss, and he is somewhat flighty and flustered. I can prove my point with cold facts. I said

"Joe, with that million dolar gate looming, it will be a great day for you when you collect that check?

He looked at me with a smile:

"You mean when I get married."

It was rest day in the Louis camp. Joe was nothing but a lounge-lizard. He talked and walked, played billiards and dreamed of his lady love'

TWENTY ROUNDS

He claims he is in the greatest shape of the year, a condition acquired more by actual fighting than training

He declares he can go 20 rounds, if he has to, but doesn't think there will be enough opponents around for such a long frolic.

He will weigh 198 pounds for Baer, has grown a half inch in the last six months and still parts his hair on the side

Everything Joe says is doubled in no-trump by Trainer Jack Blackburn who will break the gold market sure if he ever unloads his artificial tusks and Managers John Roxborough and Julian Black.

They think Maxie is a gift from the sucker trade

BRADDOCK Picks Baer

By Universal Service

Speculator, N. Y., Sept. 21—A unique bit of logic was expounded here by James J. Braddock, reigning monarch of all ringdom, after watching Max Adelbert Baer mix it four rounds with two sparring partners.

Maxie worked two rounds each with Georgie Turner and Abie Feldman, and the Messrs. Turner and Feldman slapped the erstwhile champion with an abandon that was sad to behold

This put somewhat of a problem smack in Mr. Braddock's lap, for James J. has been predicting freely that Baer would flatten Louis.

When the workout was finished, much to the relief of Braddock, who had been watching with a pained expression criss-crossing his Irish face, the gentlemen of the press surrounded the champion.

"Who do you pick now?" Braddock was asked.

"Baer by a decision," he answered blandly.

CHIMNEY TOP IN 3D BEST BET

Whitney's Pundit Feature Choice

By Dave Wilson

BEST BET—CHIMNEY TOP, 3D RACE

Rockingham Park, Sept. 21 — C. V. Whitney's Pundit will, in this observer's opinion, lead home his eight opponents, in the one-mile of the featured Press Handicap here on Monday afternoon.

Chimney Top stands head and shoulders over an indifferent lot of platers in the five and one-half furlongs of the third number. He shapes up as the one solid horse on a difficult card.

FIRST—DELIBERATE, EDRI, LA JUNTA WHITE

FIRST RACE—$800, claiming, two-year-olds, five furlongs:

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
3	Deliberate	x111	Deering	5-2	The class, on edge
12	Edri	x108	No Boy	3-1	Can better last race
9	La Junta White	110	Wagner	8-1	Mud moves her up
8	Wise King	x108	Stevenson	5-1	Fighting chance
11	A. O'Connell	x105	J. Hanford	8-1	Speedy maiden
13	The Rew	x108	Kamar	8-1	Recent graduate
14	Small Devil	107	Rosen	8-1	Quit Saturday
2	Mad Dash	x102	J. Hanford	8-1	Last very good
7	Genial Edna	110	Pascuma	8-1	The dark horse
8	September Child	x07	Jucert	8-1	Improved last time
15	Golden Duchess	110	Allen	12-1	Won in the mud
4	Skotchy	x104	Wimmer	15-1	Speedy at times
16	Irish Hero	x97	No Boy	15-1	Graduated Saturday
10	Be Just	103	Critchfield	15-1	Close at times
1	Slim Jane	107	Laidley	20-1	Poor form
5	Greenback Queen	107	No Boy	20-1	Not for mine

DELIBERATE is dropping down from $2000 top and bottom company and appears to outclass this field of $1500 top and $1000 bottom platers. The Merion colorbearer has been away from the races since the recent Suffolk session but he has trained in a satisfactory manner that indicates a winning performance first crack out of the box. EDRI was a "red hot" favorite in similar company only a few days back, but finished back in the ruck after displaying nice early foot. He may have been short. LA JUNTA WHITE will be dangerous in the event of mud.

SECOND—MARCIA, JUDGE SCHILLING, ALWINTOUR

SECOND RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, 5½ furlongs:

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
3	Marcia	x107	Wimmer	4-1	Looks like "good thing"
12	Judge Schilling	x113	Stevenson	5-2	Favorite and danger
4	Alwintour	x105	C. Kamar	4-1	Usually close up
2	Dancing Lady	107	Pascuma	6-1	Not out of it
1	On Our Way	x103	Deering	8-1	Speedy at times
5	Squeeze Out	110	Stout	8-1	Dropping down
6	Ginger Hackle	113	J. Hanford	10-1	Last race helped
7	Dancing Cloud	x105	No Boy	12-1	Speedy maiden
11	Foreign Lady	107	Madley	12-1	Improvement likely
10	Our Harry	x108	Dickey	20-1	Poor form
9	Golden Effort	110	Wholley	20-1	Not for mine
8	Heroson	x108	No Boy	20-1	Tough spot

MARCIA, a lightly raced thoroughbred, is dropping down from $2000 top and bottom company and strikes me as a "good thing." JUDGE SCHILLING found the five furlongs of his last start a bit too short. He'll relish the increased route. ALWINTOUR is right at the peak of his form.

THIRD—CHIMNEY TOP, REGULA BADDUN, PROTEUS

THIRD RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, five and one-half furlongs:

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
7	Chimney Top	x108	J. Hanford	2-1	My best bet
11	Regula Baddun	113	Rosen	3-1	Just missed last time
1	Proteus	118	Lancer	6-1	Can better recent form
4	Maddening	107	Wagner	6-1	Last race helped
5	Rhodius	113	Woolf	8-1	"Wake Up" stable
12	Heavy Sugar	113	Stout	10-1	Last not bad
10	St. Nick	113	Lynch	12-1	Needed last race
2	Tuck In	x105	Kamar	15-1	Has been quitting
8	Stowner	113	Robertson	15-1	Freshened up
6	Move Faster	[illegible]	Wholley	15-1	Stranger
9	Profitable	107	Wagner	20-1	May improve
3	Eleanor M.	x105	Deering	20-1	Works fairly well

CHIMNEY TOP was too ambitiously placed last time out. He appears well suited by all the conditions here and needs only to run back to his long Narragansett victory in order to earn brackets. REGULA BADDUN, a faint-hearted trick, figures to hang on long enough to save the place. He just failed to outlast Queen Vic last trip. PROTEUS is heaps better than recent races show.

FOURTH—SPIXI, INDIANTOWN, TRUMPERY

FOURTH RACE—$1200, conditions, The Salem Purse, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
2	Spixi	108	Pascuma	5-2	Last put him on edge
1	Indiantown	110	Deering	3-1	Contender like the track
5	aTrumpery	113	Robertson	3-1	Can better last race
6	aMutto	105	Wagner	3-1	Last race below standard
3	All Forlorn	107	Rosen	5-1	Hard to guess
7	Fairsickle	107	Stout	8-1	May come to life
4	Speedmore	105	Woolf	5-1	Improvement likely

SPIXI'S recent fourth to Stainforth was not at all bad considering that it was his first effort after a long lay-off. The Gratton colorbearer evidently was a dead short animal that day and he figures to improve many pounds. He has drubbed similar fields to this in the past. INDIANTOWN has always been partial to this strip and he looks all over the one to fear. He finished second to Stainforth last time out. TRUMPERY failed to run his usual good race in the Speed Handicap. He is capable of better things.

FIFTH—ACAUTAW, AUNT FLOR, DARK ZENI

FIFTH RACE—$1000, claiming, 3-year-olds and up. 6 furlongs:

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
1	Acautaw	114	Rosen	5-2	Call on last
8	Aunt Flor	x109	Kamar	3-1	May repeat
7	Dark Zeni	x99	J. Hanford	3-1	Dropping down
4	Fancy Flight	x101	Deering	6-1	Beaten favorite
5	Scotch Gold	109	Pascuma	6-1	Impeded last time
10	Dromilo	109	Madley	8-1	Mud moves him up
11	Gift of Roses	110	Hooper	8-1	Worked fast for this
9	Vote Boy	x10[illegible]	Stevenson	15-1	Some excellent races
2	Loxito	10[illegible]	Wagner	20-1	Moving up
3	Chatain	101	Critchfield	20-1	Cheap maiden
6	Eddie Helck	108	Elston	20-1	Not here

ACAUTAW was a corking victor at five and one-half furlongs last time out. Increased route will be to his advantage and he needs only to duplicate his most recent performance in order to earn brackets again. AUNT FLOR easily handled an indifferent lot last time out, but she was unable to cope with the top one in previous endeavors. DARK ZENI gets in under a feather of 99 pounds and merits strong consideration.

SIXTH—PUNDIT, BAHAMAS, TERALICE

SIXTH RACE—$1500, The Press Claiming Handicap, 3-year-olds and up. One mile:

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
1	aPundit	106	Robertson	5-2	May be the right one
5	Bahamas	114	Laidley	5-2	Dangerous on last
4	bTeralice	116	Maarn	5-2	Reported ready
6	aSynod	98	Wagner	5-2	Stablemate better
2	bParadun	101	Rosen	5-2	Mud moves her up
3	bRed Ensign	113	No Boy	5-2	Some good races
8	Thomasville	11	Pascuma	8-1	May need racing
9	High Image	103	Stout	8-1	Last fairly good
7	Happy Helen	98	Dodo	8-1	Not out of it

PUNDIT gets into this affair nicely under 106 pounds. He needs only to run back to any one of his good western races in order to grace the winner's circle. BAHAMAS is coming off a corking sprint victory. The increased route should be fully within the realm of his staying powers. TERALICE holds plenty of class and has trained well.

SEVENTH RACE—CAPT. JERRY, JOE JAY, TEETER TOTTER

SEVENTH RACE—$1000, claiming, three-year-olds and up. One mile:

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
9	Captain Jerry	x113	Stevenson	3-1	Best effort needed
11	Joe Jay	x103	No Boy	5-1	Figures next best
3	Teeter Totter	x107	Kamar	8-1	May hang on
2	Hidden Lore	x109	J. Hanford	5-1	Last very good
10	Blade Edge	111	Horvath	8-1	Surprised at 'Gansett
7	Winged Flight	111	Stout	8-1	Some good races
17	Balancer	x112	Deering	8-1	Chance, if sent back
5	True Charm	x103	Deering	10-1	Hard to guess
4	Gay Crest	104	No Boy	1-1	Once-in-a-whiler
12	Uppercut	113	Elston	15-1	Improvement needed
16	Sophist	x108	Stevenson	3-1	Well backed in sprint
8	Eddie Wrack	111	Wagner	15-1	Moving up
15	Appomattox	x109	Wimmer	15-1	Would surprise
14	Goldfin	108	Wagner	20-1	Not for mine
1	Auburndale	112	Critchfield	20-1	Tough spot
6	Sainted	115	Maner	20-1	Quit last time
13	Free Advice	113	Hooper	20-1	Half-miler

CAPTAIN JERRY needs only an even shake in luck in order to drub this ordinary field. JOE JAY is dropping down a few pegs. He is strictly the one to fear. TEETER TOTTER should outlast the others.

EIGHTH—FAST MOVE, BY PRODUCT, DRUSUS

EIGHTH RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, mile and one-eighth:

P.P.	Horse	Wt	Jockey	P. Odds	Comments
5	Fast Move	x111	Kamar	2-1	Figures the best
7	By Product	109	Pascuma	3-1	Last very good
6	Drusus	1[illegible]6	Wholley	4-1	Last good, more weight
3	On Sir	x111	Deering	6-1	Can better last race
9	Happy Flag	x99	Kamar	6-1	Fighting chance
2	Thisway	106	Stout	20-1	Last race helped
11	Bourbon Prince	x11	Wimmer	20-1	Poor form
1	Stars	106	Morris	20-1	Nothing last time
4	Fair Countess	x99	J. Hanford	20-1	Not in form
10	Goose Creek	100	Wagner	20-1	Last very poor
8	Son Richard	100	Finnerty	20-1	Not even a horse

FAST MOVE strikes me as the class here. This plater was a fast-going second to Livito last time out. The increased route should be right down his alley. BY PRODUCT, second to guardian, turned in a smashing performance that day. DRUSUS is picking up weight, but his most recent endeavor was very good.

INTEREST SAVINGS

Boost EDISON Earnings

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Interest savings in the year ended August 31, 1935, enabled Edison of Boston to show earnings of $9.84 per share compared with $9.59 per share in the same 1934 period.

After deducting expenses and depreciation from operating revenues gross available for interest and dividends was $8,421,550, a reduction of $850,151 from comparative 1934 figures. However, the cut in interest charges of $985,358 turned what might have been a year of lowered common stock earnings into an actual increase, providing safe coverage of the present dividend of $8 per share.

• • •

The conjuncture of war news, foreign selling and the resignation of Joseph Kennedy from the SEC proved too much for the market. Particularly as it came at a time when the technical position was poor. That the whole list has gone into reverse few will deny. The sole question of the moment is how far and how long the corrective move will have to proceed before conditions are suitable for another turn on the upside? While waiting for further evidence from the market itself strong spots will be used by the trader to lighten accounts. Investors will cling to their set course of retaining commitments regardless of intermediate reactions so long as the main, long term trend is upward.

• • •

Sidelights: The rails have not reacted proportionately as ... as industrials ... None the less they have disappointed and a burst of strength will be used to release our hypothetical trading commitment ... Those who own rails outright as long term recovery issues offering good earnings leverage possibilities have little cause for worry ... The fundamentals in the rail picture are not changed in the least ... A general reaction prevented attempts to capitalize on good news ... As we see it there has simply been a delay.

• • •

Looking at the market in a broad way it seems traders are faced with an uncertain and unsatisfactory outlook. Actual war would mean an initial liquidating movement of indeterminate duration followed by an upswing. On the other hand abrupt solution of troubles abroad would find a market well sold out ... any buying movement would find stocks scarce. Obviously taking a position in the face of such conditions is something more than risky.

• • •

Briefs: Calculations as to likely support levels are made with the above thoughts firmly in mind ... 118-120 on the industrial average and 32-34 for the rail average ... An irregular decline and not a straight line drop is naturally looked for ... Non-technical market followers of the market might find the high levels of last June a good guide ... We would suggest guarding against adoption of a bearish attitude ... The market could not go up forever ... An interlude is not only natural but necessary.

LEAD STOCKS Decrease

Stocks of lead in the United States at the end of August totaled 227,583 short tons, against 230,915 at the end of July and 234,312 at the end of August, 1934, according to American Bureau of Metal statistics.

Production in August was 34,856 tons, against 34,424 in July and 27,128 in August, 1934. Shipments were 38,195 tons in August, against 34,575 in July and 33,606 in August, 1934.

STOCKS Stage Mild RALLY

LESS FEAR OF AFRICAN WAR

New York, Sept. 21—Mild rallying tendencies appeared in today's brief stock market session, but there was still sufficient selling to keep the list somewhat off balance.

Traders appeared to have recovered partially from their severe war fright of yesterday and nibbling at selected issues was noted, the close was moderately irregular.

Despite the rejection by the Mussolini cabinet of the League of Nations' peace proposals in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, Wall Street saw hopes of a compromise and some short covering was based on this thesis.

In addition, a few bargain hunters appeared in the board rooms with the idea of shaving profits on at least a temporary technical rebound.

Commodities that were run up on the prospects of hostilities starting soon were inclined to back up as ideas a new conflagration were revised.

Wheat and corn slipped during most of the day along with cotton.

Secondary bonds developed a little better t.. .e and foreign exchanges, generally, were a bit firmer in terms of the dollar.

Timely Items

While war news tended to obscure domestic trade developments, domestic recovery items were not entirely neglected in the financial sector.

The monthly survey of business conditions by the national industrial conference board found that forward activity continued during August and the first half of September.

Greater than seasonal increases took place, it was said, in the construction, steel and electric power fields.

Residential building contracts, however, showed a decline, after adjusting for seasonal influences, for the first time since February.

Advices from most steel manufacturing centers in Pennsylvania and the South indicated no slowing down of operations. Several of the mills were said to be operating close to 50 per cent of capacity.

Expectations of a growing demand for copper were seen in the decision of the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co. directors to resume operations at the company's mines which have been inactive since 1932.

Sterling opened unchanged at $4.91¼. French francs were up .00⅜ of a cent at 6.59 cents and the lira was .01½ of a cent firmer at 8.15 cents.

LEWIS HANEY ON GOVERNMENT

Weakness in New DEAL PHILOSOPHY Is Explained

By Lewis Haney

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Sept. 21—Do you believe in the existence of principles? Do you believe that there are any rules as to what is right, or beautiful, or economic?

Do you believe that your child (or other people's children) should be subject to some discipline and learn self control?

Do you believe that events have causes, and that by studying causes, it is possible to foresee results?

If you do, you must be in favor of law and order, and you must favor constitutional government. And you must see the weakness in the new deal philosophy.

Let me explain.

• • •

One kind of person puts what he calls "self expression" above everything else. He is the sort of person who is enthusiastic about "progressive" education, and lets his child do what it wants.

Such people do not readily accept standards, principles, or rules—at least for themselves. They want to do what they want. And they care very little about how it is done. Any consideration of methods, means, and limitations, makes them impatient.

In short, they are "wish thinkers," and radicals. They have fresh young minds, and big ideas.

When they want something in politics, they set up a "board" and state its "objectives." Then they give it full power to act and spend, regardless of law. They "take a chance."

In their personal lives, they, or their children, are free spenders, best drivers and often in the divorce courts.

• • •

The other kind of person emphasizes "self control" as an important part of self expression.

They believe that there are standards and principles which can be determined by study, and which should govern action.

Accordingly, they believe in discipline for themselves and their children.

And they consider cautiously the best way to do things for they recognize that they are subject to many natural limitations.

These people are not wish thinkers. They seek to do, not what they want, but what they can.

They are not "progressives," either in pedagogy or in politics. They seek progress in an orderly way and according to principles. They are liberalists.

When they want something done by government, they would first have full debate and careful consideration of the difficulties, and the means of surmounting them. They want definite objectives, ample means, and reasonable probability of good results. They believe in economic laws, and try to follow them.

Wish thinkers and new deal leaders are egotists. Cause-and-result thinkers and liberalists are individualists. There is a big difference.

• • •

Now all this is the difference between the "institutional economics" of Rexford Tugwell and W. H. Hamilton, and the realistic economics of liberalism. It is the difference between Mr. Roosevelt's new deal and the constitutional government of Washington, Lincoln, Cleveland, and Wilson.

I write in no partisan spirit. I regret the tendency to make the issue one of sentimental slogans and "conservative" appeals to "the fathers."

The Constitution is not an absolute fixed thing. It has been changed 21 times, and can and will be changed again.

But I do believe the following:

(1) The Constitution should be changed only by constitutional means.

(2) The constitutional form of government is the wisest form for a democratic society. (It restricts egotistical "wish thinkers.")

As to the first point, I charge that our Constitution is being changed by violation. Instead of due process and parliamentary procedure, usurpation of power by a dictorial executive, has been the means.

For example, who decided the "must" bills? Who decided on the $4,800,000,000 vote-buying fund, and what it is being spent for? The NRA was not constitutional. Why, then, should anyone think that the Guffey bill or the AAA is?

• • •

As to the wisdom of the constitutional form of government, I want to say something about that tomorrow. I merely remind you that Congress cannot delegate its legislative powers to the President without destroying, not the Constitution, but constitutional government itself.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Man From the West

Winifred McEvoy Sees a Rope Perform Miracle and Avert Disaster

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Publication of your story may be delayed a bit while Floyd is in Africa, because of the time it takes his mail to reach him. Floyd asks all his adventurers to "be patient with a hard workin' feller."

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

You know, boys and girls, somewhere in these United States there's a big, soft voiced Texas cowboy, and if you know anybody like that, tell him that Winifred McEvoy of 222 West 22d street, New York City, is looking for him.

FLOYD GIBBONS

No—don't get me wrong now. Winifred isn't looking for that guy to collect a bill, or to bawl him out for that tough cut of Texas beef she got from the butcher shop last week. She wants to thank that cowpuncher for a little favor he did her once—a little favor that she will never forget as long as she lives.

And back of that favor lies a story—an adventure story of the first water.

This yarn goes back to 1924, when Winifred, with her husband and her little three-year-old baby boy, was living in England. At that time, a bunch of American cowboys were staging a rodeo at the Crystal Palace in London, and they had the whole doggone conservative town talking about the capers they cut up and the monkeyshining they did, at hours when the show was all over and they were supposed to be in bed for the night.

Those cowpunchers rode down the busiest streets in London, on horseback, at full gallop letting out "yips" and "whoopees" until the Londoners' ears rang. They lassooed the hats off London cops, and dropped their lariats on the necks of London gentlemen, wrinkling their immaculate collars, and discomposing them most horribly, bah Jove!

Winifred never expected to meet one of those cowboys face to face. If one of them had come up and rung her front door bell, she'd have run screaming for the police. That's how scared she was of those wild and woolly Westerners. But one day she did meet one—and she has never had any cause to regret it.

Now it so happened that the whole McEvoy family was pretty keen on aviation. Winifred's husband had been an officer in the Royal Air Forces and had flown a sky buggy all through the World War.

And after this thing I'm going to tell you about had happened, he said that he'd often been scared during the war, but he'd never run across anything in the line of fright like the terror he felt just a second or two before that big Texas cowboy went into action.

There was a big aeronautical exhibition staged at Hendon, in July, 1924, and the McEvoys went up to see it. At that time, Hendon was just a big field, with no modern facilities for safeguarding the crowds that came to see the exhibition. Nothing but a rope separated the spectators from the field, and Winifred and her husband were standing at that rope, well up in the front of the crowd.

They had their little boy with them, too—Winifred's husband was holding him in his arms. The little fellow didn't like that very much, though. He kept saying: "Want to sit down," and after a while, Winifred's husband set him on the ground between him and his wife. Then he became absorbed in the exhibition again.

Winifred was absorbed in that exhibition, too. She, herself, had been attached to a flying unit during the war, and she was as interested in aviation as her husband. Planes were zooming and stunting all over the field, landing and taking off so fast you could hardly keep count of them. And the next thing Winifred knew she looked down to where her baby should have been—where she could have sworn he was—and—well—he just wasn't there.

Frightened, Winifred cast a quick glance out across the field. And there she saw something that fairly made her heart stop beating. A plane had just landed and was taxiing to a stop fifteen or twenty feet away from the ropes behind which she was standing. And toddling across the field, right into the path of the plane was—her little boy.

Says Winifred: "I was terrified. In one horrible second, I could see that tiny, beloved figure cut to pieces by the whirling propeller blades. I knew I couldn't get to my baby in time to do any good—and the roar of the plane would prevent even my voice from reaching him.

"Crying my husband's name, I attempted to clamber under the ropes, when I heard a quietly compelling voice that even reached my hysterical understanding. The voice said: 'Don't get excited, Ma'am,' and then I saw something happen that I didn't think possible.

"I felt a jerking movement beside me, heard a swishing sound and saw a rope settle down around that baby form. In a fraction of a second, he was pulled to the ground and dragged to safety, out from under the whirling blades of the propeller.

"It all happened so swiftly that the crowd (who were craning their necks at a particularly daring exhibition up above) didn't realize what had occurred. As I reached for my baby, the rope was deftly flicked from around his body. He was slightly dazed, but quite unhurt. And by the time my husband and I realized that we really had a son, our cowboy friend was gone.

"I had a hazy recollection of a very large Stetson, strong hands on a rope, and a wonderful voice—but we were never able to find our baby's rescuer. I hope—if this story is ever published—that that quiet voiced man will see it, and know that he has the constant prayers and gratitude of a widowed mother, who has now only the son he saved for her."

So, boys and girls, if you run across that Texas cowpuncher, just give him that message from Winifred. If you run across an adventure—and who hasn't?—send it in to me. And if you're still able to read a newspaper Monday, don't miss that yarn by EDWARD W. MEISTER, OF 10 WHITTIER AVENUE, AMESBURY.

It's about a choice of two fates—being buried or eaten!

FAME AND FORTUNE ARE YOURS. Just help yourself. Hundreds of Boston American readers are seeing their true adventure stories printed on this page and getting paid from $10 to $110 for the pleasure. Floyd Gibbons wants the big TRUE thrill story of your life. Romeo F. Moreau of 46 Crescent place, Brockton, last month's winner, is still spending the $100 he received from Floyd recently.

Publication of your story may be delayed a bit while Floyd is in Africa because of the time it takes his mail to reach him.

FRANK PARKER STAR OF NEW AIR SERIES

By N. F. T.

There must be little or no regret in the heart of Frank Parker for his having served as a Jack Benny stooge last year.

It was really a great break for him, as borne out by the fact that he starts starring in his own right (WNAC) this evening and moves in through the 7 to 7:30 span.

This new network series will enable Frank to air his own striking tenor tones and present numerous selected guest artists as well. Tonight he will introduce such well known program personalities as Babe Ryan and her Brothers, formerly of the Fred Waring tune troupe, Peg La Centra, petite "mike" songstress, and the Four Showmen, popular male quartet. It's to be a half dramatic, half musical impression, with Frank cast as the hero throughout.

FRED A FAVORITE

Popular approval is completely responsible for the return of Fred Astaire to the microphone in the "Hit Parade" programs heard (WEEI) every Saturday evening.

When Astaire entered into the agreement which first brought him to the microphone in a series of radio performances starting in the early part of August, it was on a purely experimental basis and with no intention of remaining more than a month.

• • •

How members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation captured the notorious Jake Fleagle gang by means of a solitary fingerprint on the shattered glass of an automobile will be dramatized during the G-Men broadcast (WEEI) tonight at 9 p. m.

• • •

Aniceta Shea, a talented young soprano from Boston, will make her debut over the coast-to-coast network (WNAC) this evening as guest artist of "Concert Hall" activity from 9 to 9:30 p. m. The Concert Hall's symphony orchestra plays under the direction of Victor Bay.

• • •

GUEST GALAXY

Wilmer Allison, new national singles tennis champion; Howard Hughes, millionaire motion picture producer who recently smashed the world's land plane speed record, and Ricardo Cortez, Frank McHugh and Allen Jenkins, all of the movies, will share guest star honors on Al Jolson's regular "Chateau" broadcast from Hollywood tonight (WEEI) starting at 9:30 p. m.

Radio Answers

Q—What has become of "Cowboy Tom" and "Tex Ritter" who were on the radio until a short time ago?
F. C., of Allston.

A—They are arranging for new schedules.

Q—Where was Sophie Tucker born, what is her age and what is her nationality?
C. D., of Roxbury.

A—Sophie is a native of Hartford, Conn. That makes her an American. Her years are 48 which she freely admits.

Q—How many times per week does Boake Carter broadcast, is it five or six?
Johnny Q., of Malden.

A—Five times, eliminating Saturday and Sunday.

Q—What is the possibility of Ed Wynn coming back? We read about other stars returning, but nothing of him? Wynner, of Waltham.

A—Ed hasn't made known any schedule. He isn't set for any broadcasting as yet. Watch the listings and radio news.

Q.—Do they charge churches for religious broadcasts?
W. K. of Hyde Park.

A.—Some churches pay a line charge fee and others do not, depending on the station management policy.

Q.—Who is man who played "Sharlie" with Jack Pearl when his "Baron Munchausen" broadcasts were so popular? Wasn't his name Riley Asking, of West Roxbury.

A.—No; he is Cliff Hall.

3 Boston 'Queens' Seek Film Throne

Hollywood, Sept. 21—Three queens of Boston were in the movie capital, willing to share the mythical throne created in the staid New England states.

All were seeking film fame.

The three "queens" are Edna Costello, 20, Belmont, Mass., stenographer; Betty Sullivan, 18-year-old school girl from Boston, and Vahatis Whiting, a vivacious brunette from the same town.

"We all won equal prizes," said Miss Sullivan, "and all came out here two weeks ago from Boston for a stay in Hollywood and a chance at the movies."

Course in Stamps

Noted eastern philatelists are to be the instructors in a course on stamp collecting given by the University Extension division at Seaver Hall, Harvard University, beginning November 14.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION — TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS—TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Bulletin No. 1, containing important changes and notes in the contest manual for the Sikorsky S-39 Scale Model Plane Competition for Junior Birdmen has been distributed to contestants by national headquarters.

A copy of this bulletin is on file at wing headquarters, 100 Summer street, Boston, for the examination of members who have either entered the contest or are planning to do so.

The first paragraph of Bulletin No. 1 reads:

"The boxed text in the lower right hand corner of the plan says: 'While this plan sheet shows the built up framework of the main wing stabilizer and rudder, remember that this model may be constructed in this manner or solid.' This statement is incorrect. The model must be constructed with solid wings, tail unit members and hull, except for the cut out cabin with interior details and movable working controls, as:

It is also explained that:

Manufactured tires, wheels, ring cowl, motor plate and propeller may be used. Pulleys may be purchased from model boater airplane supply houses.

Workable landing and flying lights may be used, providing the battery is concealed.

What appears to be doors between Stations 11 and 13 of the hull are actually panels which windows may be lowered. Windows are lowered by means of straps, not cranks.

Vincent Berberan

The S-39 contest is open to all Birdmen. It will close at Easter time, when the winner will receive $1000 as the national prize. To enter, a Birdman must send 25 cents for the contest manual, addressing the request to Scale Model Competition, 1834 Broadway, New York City. The 25-cent fee will be returned when the model is submitted in the contest.

Lawrence Ouellette of Huntress avenue Westbrook, Me., is the latest member of the Boston wing to enter. Frank McLaughlin, 39 Lee street, Cambridge, has also sent for his manual. Other contestants are:

Vincent Berberan, 38 Colby road, North Quincy; Lawrence Andre of Providence, John DeMonaco of Lawrence, Thomas Grady of East Derry, N. H., Albert Romano of Providence, Robert Shea of Brighton, Everett Smith of Wakefield, Elwin Taylor of East Springfield, Maurice Wood of Brockton and Milton Zagraniczny of Bondsville.

BRIDGES AND APPROACH
TOWN OF MILLVILLE
Commonwealth of Massachusetts
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received for the following work in the Town of Millville by the Municipal Finance Commission, at the office of the State Department of Public Works, 100 Nashua Street, Boston, Mass., until 12 o'clock noon, of Tuesday, October 1, 1935, and at that place and time will be publicly opened and read: constructing a continuous steel stringer bridge consisting of two spans of thirty feet each and one span of sixty feet, a concrete slab extension of a stone arch with a span of twenty-two feet, with an approach consisting of about 745 square yards of Bituminous Macadam surfacing.

Plans may be seen and forms of specifications and contract may be obtained at the office of said Department. A pamphlet containing the Itemized Proposal with Special Provisions may be obtained on receipt of a deposit of $2.00 which amount will be returned if the person taking the pamphlet makes a bid for the work on the form provided in said pamphlet, or returns the pamphlet at or before the time of the opening of the bids.

No bid will be received unless accompanied by a surety bond accepted and approved by the Department or by a certified check for the amount of $650.00 payable to the Municipal Finance Commission.

The check or bond must not be included in the sealed envelope with the proposal but must be delivered to the Finance Secretary of the Department who will give a proper voucher for the deposit.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals, or to accept the proposal deemed best.

A Good Public Servant

Kennedy of Boston

A PUBLIC servant who commanded an unusual degree of public confidence in these times of distrust of federal bureaucracy, is quitting the public service.

In the resignation of Joseph P. Kennedy as chairman of the securities and exchange commission there is a distinct loss to the administration, which must expect to lose men of judgment, but there is a greater loss to the public.

Mr. Kennedy, assuming a most difficult task at a critical period in our economic rehabilitation, more than confirmed the most optimistic expectations.

Under his guidance the securities and exchange commission became a definitely stabilizing force in the national administration as well as in the market places. Instead of the bugaboo feared by most people at its inception, the SEC, largely because of Kennedy's influence, won the confidence of the business man and the banker and most important of all rewon to the markets the confidence of the investor.

Chiefly because of Kennedy's background of experience and his natural preference for facts rather than prejudices, the way was smoothed for the inauguration of a vast financing movement which, justly, is gaining real momentum as Kennedy yields public office.

Under his guidance, too, the SEC has fought off fakers in securities, and has contributed much to the cleansing of the stock exchanges and of security-selling, in its insistence upon truthful presentation of facts to investors.

It is too bad that the exigencies of private needs forces the retirement of such a public servant, especially at the present critical stage of our political and economic evolution.

New England Mills

Get Unexpected Help

IF the scientific report made yesterday to the New England Council that cotton fabric can be used economically to preserve and better the nation's hard roads is true, it is one of the most momentous announcements for New England since the invention of the cotton gin.

MOTORIZED TRAFFIC has produced a NATIONAL NECESSITY for SMOOTH, WIDE, CROSS-COUNTRY ROADS.

The ruts in which our grandfathers—or fathers for that matter!—jounced were smoothed by a Scot named MacAdam; they were solidified by composites of oil; they were toughened by the introduction of asphalt, and made permanent by the use of concrete.

But THESE SOLVED ONLY THE PROBLEM OF SPEED!

Roads—of ALL constructions—CRACKED with COLD—DISSOLVED in HEAT—CRUMBLED under TRAFFIC—and WASHED AWAY with FLOOD.

Now the scientists say COTTON FABRIC will PREVENT these dissolutions.

THIS MEANS that NEW ENGLAND MILLS will be kept going at MANY TIMES THEIR PRESENT MAXIMUM CAPACITY to SUPPLY THE NEED of the NATION'S ROADS.

It means that EVERY ROAD so constructed will be MORE NEARLY PERMANENT THAN ANY NOW BUILT.

TO the city and state whose highways are first to use this method of PRESERVATION there will flow the FIRST rush of industrial PROSPERITY.

Valuations Too High

There's a Reason

Property owners in general are apt to sympathize with L. Henry Whittredge, who offered $20,000 to anyone selling his Lynn property at the valuation set by the assessors.

Property owners in Lynn and elsewhere have long wondered how boards of assessors could "get away" with assessments out of all proportion to actual values.

The average citizen feels it a fair proposition to demand that his property—whether house or land—be NOT assessed for MORE than he can get for it.

One frequent reason for excessive property valuations is to make the tax rate appear lower than it really is.

Business Is History

New Cambridge Idea

BUSINESS IS HISTORY!

But in the entire period of American development—UP TO NOW—it has been presented as BIOGRAPHY!

In ADVERTISING or in LITERATURE the story of our great industries has INVARIABLY been a PICTURE GALLERY OF PERSONS.

In CAMBRIDGE a NEW NOTE has been struck.

THE HISTORY of an institution has been presented WITHOUT A MENTION of its important founders and present leaders!

This put those leaders more graphically before you.

It LETS THEIR DEEDS COMMEMORATE them.

And it makes a BOOKLET that EVERY CITIZEN will WANT TO KEEP FOR ITS HISTORIC VALUE.

The institution is the HARVARD TRUST COMPANY.

Boston a Leader

In Rubber Trade

Statistics compiled by the Rubber Manufacturers' Association reveal that Boston maintains its position as a leader in importing the raw material for tire makers.

In showing Boston to be in second position among all our ports with raw rubber imports, these statistics bare nothing new.

Boston has long held this position.

But it is interesting to have proof that, despite many adverse conditions, she is able to maintain herself in it.

"Easy-Minded"

Morgenthau to Play

Secretary Morgenthau before going on a breathing spell to Europe warbled this assurance to an asthmatic country:

"I wouldn't be going unless I was EASY-MINDED."

Leaving the taxpayer holding the bag, in which there is a growing deficit running into the deep billions and a national debt steadily climbing toward Sirius, our Secretary of the Treasury leaves us "mind-easy" for to go and play on the sunny slopes of the Pyrenees.

Easy-minded rests the head that is not crowned with taxes!

"Castles in the Air"

Often Described by Great Writers

"BUILD on, and make thy castle high and fair. Rising and reaching upward into the skies."—Longfellow.

Threatening wars, depression, and unrest cloud every hill on the world horizon. It is difficult for young people to look over the hills and build "castles in the air."

Serious young people, out of college, looking for jobs, finding none, come home at night to hear their parents talk discouragingly of horrible news in papers.

Boys and girls say to themselves: "What's the use? Older heads than ours have tried to solve earth's problems and admit failure. They speak not of, Will there be a war, but WHEN will it come?

"A civilization bled white is the heritage of our generation. We can do nothing to alter that certainty."

But the boy and girl, above, still see a vision, "a castle in the clouds." Pessimism, gloom, discouragement are unknown to happy childhood. Youth will always look beyond an angry horizon, and build its lovely "castles in the air."

It was written in the Book of Joel: "Your old men shall dream dreams; your young men shall see visions." Those words were never more true than in these troubled times.

When men grow old, past the creative prime of life, they can only "dream dreams." They are held back by a thousand ties, the responsibilities of caring for a family, fading physical vigor, the caution, bred of experience, that is the enemy of progress. They can but "dream dreams" of what they might have done, or be content with memories of what they have already done.

They must be satisfied with the hope that their children will grow up to build their air-castles into reality.

It is for young men and women to build "castles in the clouds" that Dryden has described as, "the people's prayer, the glad diviner's themes, the young men's visions, and the old men's dreams."

Young people should be encouraged to project their minds beyond the human suffering and bewildered confusion of today.

"Dreams are each a world; and books, we know,
Are a substantial world, both pure and good.
Round these, the tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
Our pastime and our happiness will grow."—Wordsworth.

Books are the wings on which young minds may fly above and beyond forbidding, encircling hills.

Books are the "giant's shoulder upon which a dwarf may stand" and look beyond the tallest walls that imprison the human mind.

A book often kindles fire in the breast of some farm boy or city bound child, kindles a fire that will burn brightly and light the minds of men with NEW books.

Great books, great music, great paintings often fire the mind and soul of young boys and girls, give them AMBITION to change "gay castles in the clouds" into "cloud-capped towers" of achievement.

AMBITION is the force that translates young air-castles into real towers of accomplished greatness.

Great writers have portrayed "ambition" as a vice. Gray wrote: "The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

But these three writers have most wisely defined "ambition."

Quintillian wrote: "Ambition in itself is a vice, yet it is often the parent of virtue."

Montaigne wrote: "Ambition is not a vice of little people."

And Beecher wrote: "A noble man compares and estimates himself by an idea which is higher than himself, and the mean man by one which is lower than himself. The one produces aspiration, the other, ambition. Ambition is the way in which a vulgar man aspires."

An ambition that breeds pride is unworthy of a man. But ambition that makes a farm boy become a great scientist, or great industrialist, that ambition is "the parent of all virtues."

Ambition is like fire. Uncontrolled, fire will ravage forests and cities. Controlled fire is the parent of steam, the life-blood of industry, the force that created what we call "Civilization."

Voltaire has described the worthy ambitious man: "The modesty of certain ambitious persons consists in becoming great without making too much noise; it may be said that they advance in the world on tiptoe."

The two young people in the picture above, and all young people, should remember these words of Bruyere:

"In the world there are only two ways of raising one's self, either by one's own industry, or by the weakness of others."

There can be no choice between these paths over the hill to the portals of youth's "gay castles in the clouds." HARD WORK, "one's own industry," is the only way.

It may seem easier, quicker to rise in the world through dishonesty, trickery, taking advantage of the weakness of others. By that path castles in the air will always be "just over the hill," a mirage. Only by HARD WORK, at some job that makes a permanent contribution to the happiness of others, the advancement of learning—something that LASTS—can we ever hope to reach and OWN our "gay castles in the clouds."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 21—Purely personal piffle: Zero in amusement: Surf bathing after dark. Elsa Maxwell shows all of them her heels in dashes to Page One. Last of the rowdily capable press agents: Richard Maney. A column I never miss: Louella Parsons' movie chatter. Grand yarn spinner: Harry Evans.

O. O. McIntyre

Favorite column title, Hannen Swaffer's "Beautiful London Yesterday." Nobody fingers a pipe so fondly as Howard Chandler Christy. When anyone sneezes, my younger Boston jumps into his lap and cocks his head quizzically. Pierre Cartier looks as every man hopes to—but doesn't—in evening dress.

Only fare tempting me between meals is a plate of fresh ginger snaps and a glass of cool milk. And afterward I nearly swoon for a cigarette.

Try to order pear preserves in any New York restaurant. One of the handsomest men in the movie business, Watterson Rothacker, is not an actor.

Cole Porter is least self conscious in the celebrity parade. John T. McCutcheon has exerted the greatest influence on contemporary cartoonists. The only heavy chain cigarette smoker I ever knew to quit over night was Henry L. Doherty. Grand name for an Irish boy: Shannon.

Top in boreddom: An evening in a night club. Disraeli's reputed, "No man is a hero to his valet" was first remarked by Carlyle, before that by Goethe and before that by Hegel. Under an ice cold shower, I turn the blue of corn flower. But what can one expect of one red corpuscle?

Unforgettable spiritual surge: Walking down a cobble-stone street in the moonlight at 2 a. m. toward the Rouen cathedral. When I want to kill off a terrific hunger I go to Lindy's. And shoot the works—from meat ball soup to two decker lemon pie.

First woman playwright I ever met was Rida Johnson Young. Sid Solomon is my favorite epithet hurler. Any time I try to select a hat the whole store begins to whoop and holler. Twinklingest eyes — Mrs. Keats Speed. Unusual profile—Libby Holman.

Most typical American gesture: The seventh inning stretch. The nearest to fainting was when a squirrel hopped on my shoulder from a bough in Central Park. I ran sideways until I fell.

Henry Sell had a group of fortune tellers searched after a party and recovered two wallets, three vanity cases and several articles of jewelry. They just laughed. Add contrasts: Roy Howard's cubbyhole office in the old World building and his expansive modernistic Park avenue suite today. There should be red faces over Oliver Herford's last days.

Thrills that always repeat: Gulls racing out from the Irish coast and the glide into Grand Central after long absence. A most thoughtful friend: Bob Brinkerhoff.

Idea to banish ennui: When Charles B. Driscoll becomes fed up with New York he phones an airport, finds when the next aeroplane leaves on the longest flight and takes it. He wound up once in Peru. Greatest softie among the hard boiled eggs: W. C. Fields. They are over press-agenting Grace Moore.

Nobody has been hammered so mercilessly along Broadway and comes back unruffled as Earl Carroll. He can take it! Something the yokel misses in the big town: The high chair Sunday morning shine in front of the hotel.

Most agonizing first night flop ever witnessed: Opening of Music Hall. But now look! Twice I've started to buy an accordion but got cold feet. Fascinating at 5 p. m.—the barber shop of a de luxe hotel. Itchiest of literary names: Lytton Strachey.

In our town we called canapes doo-dads. Only article of jewelry I never lost is a 15-cent necktie clasp. Mind over matter note: Passing a chemist's window full of sponges makes Seymour Hicks break out in a rash. Nothing expresses hoity-toity like that Harlem term, "diety."

Only the Gish girls could come back from Paris wearing those comical hats and retain dignity. Well, Mrs. Vincent Astor might. For 18 karat size-ups of snootiness in smaller cities: Katherine Brush. Most hilarious bon voyage gift: The goldfish in a bowl sent Noel Coward. How many can name Marilyn Miller's husband right off?

Rube Goldberg, doing a series for the Red Book, drops cock-eyed hilarities for themes serious, sensitive, poignant. File or the wrong guess hook: Broadway's prediction the marriage of Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay would crack up in two months. After a shave with an old fashioned razor, my wife sniffed: "You would find a barbed wire fence to crawl through!"

Words of Wise Men

A man possessed with one idea cannot be reasoned with.—Froude.

Nature is often kind enough to give even the clouds a luminous lining.—Lowell.

What is civilization? The power of a good woman.—Emerson.

Love makes one fit for any work—George Herbert.

If a man deceives me once, shame on him. If twice, shame on me.—Brigham Young.

An orator is a man who says what he thinks and feels what he says.—W. J. Bryan.

Men are never so good or so bad as their opinions. — James Mackintosh.

Some men are like bullets. They go farthest when they are smoothest. — Richter.

Exercise your rights in such a manner as not to injure another man's right.—Lincoln.

For Better Manners

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

The American Society of Teachers of Dancing, holding their 57th annual convention in New York, stress the dance as a conditioner in good manners. They believe the grace and decorum of the dance floor will induce poise and seemly behavior in the young.

Edwin C. Hill

That's old stuff, of course — older than we realize — but oldsters, I believe, will indorse the idea, in view of the fact that in recent years manners haven't been so highly regarded as they once were.

Not only have old taboos slid into the ashcan, but even the best of modern education hasn't emphasized manners as once it did.

There is a school of progressive education which is inclined to throw manners pretty much into the discard. They are intent on reaching some precious, inner core of individuality, luring it out and giving it play.

RESTRAINTS NEEDED

Sometimes they find something worth developing, but not always and there is revealed a raucous and rowdy young person who might have been better turned out with a few of the restraints and reserves of conventional manners.

Left to themselves more than they used to be, the youngsters have developed the cutting-in system, with the stag line. It provides action and excitement, but many thoughtful parents look on it as a lapse into barbarism. Certainly, it has some raw and brutal facets.

In fast-stepping circles, where youth has more money than sense or innate good breeding, it is not unusual for some lad, dancing with a clumsy or ill-favored girl, to flutter a banknote in his hand behind her back.

Any man who is willing to cut in and take the fumble-footed girl off the other chap's hands is entitled to snatch the money as he swings into the milling.

Here's a depressing but true story of such an encounter, with an unlooked-for sequel, in this world of gilded, or tarnished, youth:

It happened at one of the big deb parties at a midtown hotel. A blase youth, out of a silk stocking college a year or two, was dancing with one of those girls who used to be called "wall flowers"—"drips," I think the young folks call them now.

The bored youth was dangling a five-dollar bill behind her back. Another boy took the money and the girl. After the dance, the first youth said to his friend:

"Joe, I was awfully sorry to dump that girl on you, but she was a terrible quince. I just couldn't stick it out. It was worth $5 to get rid of her."

"Oh! That was all right," said Joe. "The girl was holding out a $10 bill, and I got that, too."

That's a laugh, of course, but, since hearing this yarn, and learning from young people that it is a fairly accurate cross-cut of the social behavior of modern youth, it doesn't seem so funny.

I'm all for the dancing teachers in fanning up ballroom manners again, and for parent-teachers' associations, who are again bringing forward some old-fashioned standards.

It just happens that I have at hand a book on etiquette, called "Decorum," published anonymously in the seventies.

There's many a smile in this quaint rubric of stiff-necked ceremonial, but there is in it, above all, a constant deference to the feelings of other persons—perhaps worth citing here in contrast to such goings on as the above

"Horsefeathers!" we hear young Reginald murmuring as he tied his dress tie, getting ready for a purple evening. Maybe manners aren't important after all.

But it wouldn't do Reginald any harm to read old Plautus, who saw "degenerate manners grow apace," and linked them, knowingly, with events of great moment, which swept the young bucks as well as the oldsters down into the junk heap.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

A BOOK FOR EVERY EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Elsie Robinson

I'd like five thousand dollars, please. Or maybe fifty thousand. Or whatever it would take to buy "FACING TWO WAYS" for every 18-year-old girl in America. Particularly the mousey ones, with stick-out shoulder blades and stringy hair. Or for their mothers. I am sure that no other book could possibly do as much for them—or be as good for what ails them.

"FACING TWO WAYS" was written by Baroness Shidzue Ishimoto—published by Farrar & Rinehart. It is the story of her life—of all Japanese life.

Have you ever handled a bit of old brocade—followed the jewel colors flickering like flames through the dull, golden warp—traced the intricate design, more complicated than moonlight on running water or young willow leaves against an April sky? Then you will know how Baroness Ishimoto's book feels.

For she was like that. Vivid flame, but trapped in the intricate slavery of ritualistic life—beautifully woven as old brocade, but also as rigidly designed.

Nothing in Japanese life "just happens." Everything is a part of something that has occurred before or will occur again. Everything is a ceremony—and so is regulated by countless conventions and laws.

And nothing in Shidzue's young expression could be impulsive or unimportant—nothing could be done just for Shidzue. Everything mattered tremendously, because everything she did affected millions of people living, dead, or yet to be born.

This is, of course, true of all human acts. But the Japanese girl is forced to remember that fact—and the American girl isn't. Yet in her heart she wants to. That is why I would give this book to every 18-year-old girl in the U. S. A. if I could.

For there's no life on earth quite as pleasant as an American girl's nor, ironically, as pitiful. She's supposed to be the most carefree creature on earth. And is. That's the trouble.

Youth doesn't really want to be carefree—to be treated like a pretty doll. It may pout if you lay burdens on its shoulders, but actually it sees itself as a great crusader . . . is filled with a surging sense of its own dignity, significance and deep potency.

Life is a marvelous and mysterious affair, and Youth, with its undulled senses, realizes that fact more keenly than any other age—longs more fiercely to take its place in the magnificent processional. Even a tragic place.

But Youth longs in vain — in America.

In Japan, Russia, Italy, Germany, Youth marches today. But in America, Youth still plays around — its flaming visions dwindling to the size of picture postals!

But here, in this book, is life as every girl would like to live it. Not as happily, or as freely—but as proudly and passionately, with all its rich pageantry and sense of far flung adventure.

A young girl moving like an eager, vivid thread through the intricate pattern of her social background. Learning its endless, elaborate ceremonies that have been handed down, unchanged to the smallest detail, for two thousand years.

The tea pouring ceremony. The cherry blossom festival ceremony. The bowing ritual—a special bow for each person and occasion. Ten thousand special bows!

And those kimonos! Hundreds of them — lovely as a dream—each one designed for its special purpose. The trousseau list alone should sell that book! Detail piled upon detail. And a young girl moving like a flame through it all.

Isn't It So?

Happiness is everywhere, but seldom found anywhere.

Many girls leave home because their parents aren't home either.

Some people judge a town by what they can see from the railroad.

Virtue is its own reward, but even an angel may blow his own horn.

It seems there are no laws strong enough to prohibit the trouble brewers.

The three words most effectively used by a man to preserve peace are "Yes, my dear."

Some old folks attribute their long life to always minding their own business.

The man who gets along in life is the one who can look happy when he isn't.

The man who says: "I run things at home" usually refers to the lawn mower, the washing machine and the errands.

Many a man seems contented because he is too lazy to make a kick.
